A GREAT deal of Frank incense has been offered to the President's bride.—Boston Commercial Bulletin. It has been continued for some time and she is not very highly incensed yet.—Pittsburg Dispatch. Perhaps that is because she is already so sensible.

BEFORE H. W. Beecher started to Europe he urged his Plymouth congregation to love one another until his return. That's very good advice, but should be followed with due discretion, and in loving one another they should avoid the example that Henry set for them a few years ago.

IN the death of Senator Kennedy, of Philadelphia, a few days ago, disappeared from a life of usefulness one of the brightest young men in the Democratic party of Pennsylvania. He was the youngest man in the State Senate, and when elected was not yet of legal age for the office, but reached that age before the time came to take his seat in the Senate.

DEMOCRATS, like Congressman Wheeler of Alabama, attack the memory of patriots of the Rebellion and when they are defended their defenders are accused of fighting the war over again. Those who do not like to hear about the war should refrain from reviving that issue, for, notwithstanding the forgiveness which we have freely extended to the South, we have not yet concluded that the North did not have the just part of the fight.

QUEEN VICTORIA entered, Sunday, the 50th year of her reign, having succeeded her uncle, William IV., on the 20th of June, 1837. There were special services in St. Paul's Cathedral, in Westminister Abbey, where she was crowned, and in other London churches. This year is to be one of jubilee in the kingdom, and it will indeed be one if some form of Home Rule for Ireland should be adopted before it expires.

WHATEVER Mr. Wolfe may say about "Cameronism," "bossism" and the rest of the worn out terms which he delights to use, it is an undeniable fact that at no time for many years past has there been a better feeling in the Republican party of this State than there is to-day. The party leaders have been moderate and discreet in their policy; new and younger men have been permitted to come to the front, and the preparations for the coming State Convention have been conducted harmoniously in nearly every county of the State. There is no dissension and little or no dissatisfaction, and the growl of Wolfe thus far is the only sign that the men who went out of the party in 1882 with John Stewart are not now all contented with having resumed their old places in the Republican ranks.

A Word to Prohibitionists.

One of the most comical events that has occurred in politics for a great while is the peculiar movement, during last week, of the Hon. Charles Wolfe, of Union county. It is at once supremely ludicrous and universally disgusting.

So far as we are aware, the Prohibition party was not in want of a candidate for Governor. Among the few deceived and erring individuals who compose it there are men of brains. Of course, there must be some mental crookedness in any brain which would lead its owner to espouse prohibition as a political factor at this particular juncture of human affairs in Pennsylvania, but nevertheless among those who have espoused it are some men with qualifications for the office. Their connection for years with the party would seem to entitle them to some claims on the nominating power.

But, behold! The firebrand of Union county, who was never known as a Prohibitionist, suddenly becomes convinced that in its temperate walks is the way to most direct preferment for office, and electrically he nominates himself to the position of leader of the Prohibition forces of the State, and says he will be the candidate of the party for Governor.

What does the Prohibition party mean if it is an organization of principle and with an aim that it does not arise at once and throw off the stigma thus attached to it by Wolfe? To submit to the leadership of such an adventurer would be its death-blow and would undo the work of years. Every man of principle in the party must look upon Wolfe's action with disgust. As well might some disgruntled Democrat publicly proclaim himself a nominee of the Republican party for the office of Governor, or vice versa. Such superlative political gall was never known before.

We do not believe for one moment that the Prohibition party will make this nomination. If it does commit the suicidal policy of making a nomination this year it will surely select a man who is a Prohibitionist from principle; who has spent and been spent in battling for this party. To make any nomination this fall would be only to do so much towards ending its own life, because it is an effort to keep from power a party which has done all for temperance that ever has been done, and to give free reign to a party which has always been the friend of whisky and the foe of good. It is the duty of temperance people to frown down any movement which will tend to elevate any such an unprincipled adventurer as Wolfe to the detriment of a Christian gentleman such as Gen. Beaver, who is destined to be nominated and elected governor of Pennsylvania. When the Prohibtionists of this county meet they should have remembered this. Instead of sending delegates to a State Convention they should have sent a memorial to it urging it this year to refrain from nominating a candidate for Governor. In so doing they could surely best serve the cause of temperance.

THERE seems to be a disposition in some quarters to look upon Senator Wallace as a formidable candidate should he be nominated by the Democrats for Governor of Pennsylvania. It is true that the Senator is the most conspicuous Democrat who has been mentioned among the possible candidates, and his past prominence, therefore, gives him a certain prestige which other politicians equally as strong as regards ability and character do not possess. The real strength of Wallace does not lie in his popularity, because that is confined chiefly to certain sections of the interior of the State, but in his skill as a party organizer. No Democrat in Pennsylvania to-day understands better the art of organization for a campaign than the Clearfield leader. He would bring out every Democratic vote that could be found from the banks of the Delaware to the shores of Erie; and that would be all. He could win or convert no Republican votes whatever. Solid as he might be with his own party, he would find himself confronted by a Republican candidate equally as solid with his party. The nomination of Senator Wallace would simply mean a straight party fight. He does not belong to the class of Democrats, if indeed, there are now any of that kind in Pennsylvania at all, who can induce Republicans to support them, and unless Senator Wallace, if he should be the candidate, can discover more Democrats in Pennsylvania than have ever before been known, he will be beaten by the regulation Republican majority. In a State like this the Democrats need a candidate who not only can keep his own party together, but can draw to it new converts.—Phil'a. Bulletin.

A Candidate for Auditor General.

In an address of the Philadelphia delegation to the State Convention very strong reason are urged in behalf of the candidacy of Col. A. Wilson Norris, of that city, for the nomination for Auditor General. The address continues as follows:

"In requesting you to aid us in securing the nomination of Col. Norris, we beg to recall the splendid record of our city in its allegiance to Republican principles, and ask you to remember that more than one-fifth of the majority in Pennsylvania for Abraham Lincoln in 1860 was given by Philadelphia; nearly one-half of the majority for Governor in 1863; that in 1864 the lamented Lincoln was defeated in the State, exclusive of Philadelphia, by a Democratic majority of 6,047, but it remained for Philadelphia's majority of 11,759 to rescue Pennsylvania by annihilating the Democratic figures and saving our cause by a majority of 5,712; that in 1866 she gave nearly one-third of the majority of the entire State for Governor; that in 1868 she gave more than one-fifth of the majority for President; that in 1869, while the entire State, exclusive of Philadelphia, gave but 169 Republican majority for Governor, Philadelphia's majority, was 4,400 making the total Republican majority 4 569; that in the splendid National contest of 1872, of the 90 672 majority in the entire State, Philadelphia furnished 45 446 as her contribution; that of the 34 368 majority for Governor in 1872, Philadelphia, alone, gave as her share in the contest 20 437; that whilst in 1875 our State ticket came to us with a Democratic majority of 4 605, Philadelphia's majority of 16 635, saved the State by 12,030 majority; that in the National Contest of 1876, of the entire majority in the State of 17 944, Philadelphia, alone, gave 15,030; that of the majority of 22,353 for Governor in 1878, Philadelphia contributed 16,344; that in our National contest of 1880, of the majority of 37 376 in the entire State Philadelphia gave 20,883, or more than one-half; that, notwithstanding the disastrous campaign of 1882, when our State came to Philadelphia with a Democratic majority of 43 666, Philadelphia gave a majority of 3 464 for the Republican cause; and, of the 81,019 majority given for James G. Blaine in the entire State in 1884, Philadelphia furnished 30,114 as her quota.

When we recall this splendid record of devotion to Republican faith, we confidently believe that you will recognize our rights, as Republicans, to firmly rely upon your support in our efforts for recognition on the State ticket. We have no more earnest and active Republican in our ranks than Col. Norris. He has fought the battles of our country and party ever since Sumter's guns electrified the loyal heart in 1861, and by his eloquence and ability has, in every campaign since the war, aided in making the record for our party in this country, which we have briefly recalled.

We ask you for your support because we know he merits the honor; because as a soldier in the late war he did his whole duty; as a citizen he is ever active for the public good; as a Republican, loyal and unceasing in his labors, by distinguished ability, in every contest; honest and faithful in the discharge of every public duty heretofore required of him.

The coming campaign is the only important one prior to the great contest of 1888. We must, in the face of a Democratic State and National Administration, give the strongest testimony of our faith in Republicanism by a large majority. To accomplish this, recognition should be given to a county which has proven loyal in every State and National Contest, and recorded a majority for our party.

We therefore earnestly appeal to you for your personal support, knowing your unselfish devotion to the best interest of our party, and sincerely trust that you will join with our County Delegation in securing the nomination of our candidate.

With very great respect, yours truly,

DAVID H. LANE, Chairman.

TELL you what, the 20th congressional district, of which we are an humble part, furnishes a large proportion of the statesmen of this state and has more than its share of material to make governors of. There's Beaver, Curtin, Wallace and Wolfe.

Saved by the Republicans.

To the Republican party, remarks the Philadelphia Press of Saturday, belongs the credit of heading off a dangerous and senseless scheme of tariff revision. Had there been a Republican majority in the House neither Morrison nor any other Free-trader would have had a chance to move that the House go into Committee of the Whole to consider any such thing as the Morrison bill. No such measure would have come from the committee. The industries of the country would not have been threatened in the slightest degree at this critical time in the affairs of labor when a Free trade agitation could only add to the general troubles experienced.

There is in this an important lesson for the whole country. With the Democratic Administration substantially for Free Trade, with an overwhelming majority of the Democratic representatives in Congress for Free Trade, the safety of business and labor is clearly in the election of a Republican Congress this year. There is enough that is vicious in the Democratic attitude on this question to cause constant alarm. The fact that a few Democratic members of Congress are enlightened enough to understand the needs of their constituents is not a sufficient safeguard. Party necessity may any day break that down. The reliance must be in the supremacy and wisdom of the Republican party.

Death of a King.

No one can read of the sad suicide of King Ludwig II, mad monarch of Bavaria, without a tear of sympathy. He was one of the handsomest, most chaste and eccentric men in Europe. His mania was one which, while it administered to his desires and made him happy, at length caused his suicide. Endowed with the most extavagant tastes, there was nothing in early life to curb them, and the king gave unlimited indulgence, living all his life in a veritable fairyland. While he lived he enjoyed his heaven of happiness and surrounded himself with luxuries which are dreamed of, not experienced in this more practical and prosaic land. This passion of extravagance seemed to control his life. Although spendidly endowed physically, he was the only German king who did not engage in the French war. He avoided women and lived to himself, although report says he loved once ardently, but his love was disappointed. The story of his life reads as poetic and beautiful as any thing ever known in romance.

MR. HOLMAN does not believe in economy in time any more than in money when he is himself interested in anything. The vote on the Morrison bill was delayed on his account, as he wished to vote on it, and several hours of the valuable time of more than three hundred members was wasted. Mr. Holman had made a hurried trip to Indiana to see that the Democratic convention of the Fourth district would not forget the famous object or and nominate some one else. So it happened that when Mr. Morrison was ready for the defeat of his bill, Mr. Holman, one of his supporters was far away, but the latter telegraphed to have the vote deferred, and it was accordingly postponed to give Mr. Holman time to arrive. He emerged from the cloak room just in time to respond to his name and give his vote for the bill. Mr. Holman could have been paired readily, but he wanted to vote in person, and the House wasted a great deal of time to permit him to do so. When Mr. Holman's vote was recorded it was only one more vote to destroy the industries of the country, but fortunately was of no avail.

THE motion to go into a committee of the whole on the Morrison bill, Thursday last, was defeated in Congress by a vote of 157 to 140. Some people say that this satisfied the Protectionists. But we say in clarion tones that it does not. It is a subject of regret that the great American cause of Protection can secure a majority of only 17 in its representative deliberative body. Of Democratic Congressional votes polled from this State three favored the motion. This is a bad showing for Pennsylvania, which should certainly be a unit for Protection. While we are glad the representative from this district voted right, we urge upon the people in the districts whose representatives voted "aye" to banish their false members into oblivion and substitute them with persons who will more truthfully represent their constituents.

LET us see, what great reforms have the Democrats instituted? They closed up Roach's ship yard and threw hundreds of men out of work. They tinkered with the tariff and further depressed industries. They have endeavored to dishonor Stanton's memory. Can anyone remember any good that they have done?

We Hope So.

The Philadelphia Press believes that "good times" are here and gives as evidence that good bonds were scarcely ever higher, and a new railroad loan was never placed at a lower rate than last week—netting investors at the price 2⅞ per cent. The stock market is rising. General business demands 36 per cent more exchanges than it did a year ago—for the last week reported $870,211,218 in 1886, against $638,217,247 in 1885. When the question comes up as to the reason for all this, it is answered by the circumstance that in New York City, which furnishes two-thirds of these exchanges, the business of the stock exchange is now just twice what it was a year ago. The aggregate loans of the banks in New York, Boston and Philadelphia June 12 were $580,000,000; a year before they were $519,000,000. This advance of an eighth simply measures a still larger increase in the movement of merchandise. To date one-fifth more shoes have been sold in this country than in last year to the same date; since September our cotton mills have taken an eighth more cotton, and stocks of cotton cloth are only one-third as large; our blast furnaces are in current weeks turning out from a fifth to a fourth more pig iron; the trunk lines which carry trade to and from these cities to May 31 made approximately $1,962,000 from through grain, against $1,722,000 in the same time last year, and this is only one item in railroad business out of many.

The business and the sales of the first six months of the current year are certain to be exceeded by those of the last six months. The harvests of 1886, it is now certain, will be larger than in 1885, and they will be marketed at prices which will not be lower and in all probability will be higher than for the last twelvemonth. Wool, one great staple, after reaching very nearly the lowest average prices on record last Spring, has begun an advance, on the basis of the London wool sales, of from 10 to 20 per cent., which can not fail to increase the profits of the producer in this country. This advance is noteworthy, also, as the first which has taken place in any of the great staple raw materials and its influence upon the future price of manufactures in wool must be considerable. Carpet wools, for instance, have been advanced more heavily than others, and the finished product can scarcely escape the effect of this rise.

A year ago also, it must not be forgotten, most careful observers of our currency were in a good deal of a panic over the silver question. But at present the risks of the demonetization of silver bulk larger in India, and by consequence in England, than here. The limit of the absorption of silver surplus of the old world by India seems to have been almost reached. When the crash comes there, as come it will in due time, some international agreement to restore or increase the coinage value of silver seems inevitable, and this will add to the strength of our own currency. Meanwhile, both our circulating medium and our banking system appear well able to meet all the nearer perils of the day, which is more than can be said of most European countries.

The Greenback-Labor Curtin combination limps badly already.

It is only justice to admit that Mrs. Grover Cleveland's receptions beat Miss Rose Elizabeth Cleveland's all hollow.

Railroad rates are so exceedingly low in the northwest that it has become cheaper to travel than to pay rent.

The Democratic papers are unanimously in favor of Charles S. Wolfe's candidacy just now. If Brother Wolfe can see through a ladder he will understand what that means.

Reports of failure in the Delaware peach crop are ripe again. They usually mature about this season of the year. The fruit sells more rapidly and at better prices than would be the case if the people were led to believe that that the production will be at least up to the average.

Since Louisiana has been turned over to the tender care of the Democratic party its State debt has been increased over three millions of dollars and now reaches the sum of $15,100,313. The people have nothing to show for the increase, except that Democratic government is dearer than Republican to the extent of several millions of dollars.

The meteorites that fall upon the earth are composed chiefly of iron. Signor Bombicci suggests an explanation of this. The earth is a big magnet, as shown by the proceedings of a bar of steel freely suspended and accurately balanced on its centre. Bombicci's idea is that this big terrestrial magnet, when rushing through space containing meteoric particles, exerts a selective attraction for those which are ferruginous. The fact that so many masses of meteoric iron have been found in the Arctic region, so far as it goes, supports this theory.

Poetry.

THE DAY WHEN I FORGET YOU.

Oh darling, all the pansies b'oom,
Lulled into rest by sweet perfume,
Will die amid the woodland gloom,
The day when I forget you.

The stars will falter as they cross
The blue abode and sudden loss
Will fill the hours with bitter dross
The day when I forget you.

The sunshine will not touch that day;
The June tide tell of the glad bay;
But all the world will walk in gray
The day when I forget you.

For you, if not for those you know,
Th heart will fill and overflow
In bitter tears that hurt us so,
The day when I forget you.

But, oh, love, that will never be,
My heart will hold your memory;
As sheols keep singing of the sea,
I never shall forget you.

Here's rosemary leaves and pansies blue;
They tell you tha I will be true
To memory, darling, and to you,
And never shall forget you.

Even lying under grass and snow,
When Summer winds and Winter blow
Above the heart that lies below
I never shall forget you.

Come to my grave and you will see
A pansy and the bloom shall be
A message, love, to you from me,
That I have not forgot you.

THE MAN WHO ADVERTISES.

He's just a bit ecstatic, but not a whit rumatic, and he does it up emphatic when he sends a business "ad,"

And he cuts a knowing caper, saying: "Put it in the paper, at top of highest column, if you want to make me glad.

Start it with your biggest letter, set it up a little better, than that other fellow's ad. across the way

I want it fixed up nice at the cheapest kind of price—I'm going to see if advertising doesn't pay."

Now every spring and winter he rushes to the printer, and in the time of summer and the fall,

And his copy is so plain you can read and come again; oh, the man who advertises knows it all.

Then the paper man sits down and scratches on his crown, and hits his scalp a fearful kind of thud;

He's thinking as he's winking: "Were columns made all top my business I could drop, be fat and sleek and rich as mud."

"YES, BILLY DO."

She was a winsome country lass,
So William, on a brief vacation,
More pleasantly the time to pass,
Essayed flirtation;
And as they strolled in twilight dim,
While near the time to parting drew,
Asked if she'd like to have from him
A billet-doux.

Of French this simple maid knew naught,
But, doubting not 'twas something nice,
Upon his meaning quickly thought.
Then in a trice
Upward she turned her pretty head;
Her rosy lips together drew,
For purpose plain and coyly said,
"Yes, Billy, do!"

ENVOY.

And William did!

MUFFED FLIES.

CRUSHED AGAIN.

His hopes were high, his heart was light,
He nummed a roundelay,
For on that afternoon he might
See two base ball clubs play.
But soon the rain fell, overhead,
And then he wept and groaned;
Life was a farce as this he read:
"The ball game is postponed."

He got a situation,

He leaped to fame's etherial round,
When he his foes did swagger,
And did it at a single bound,
By making one three-bagger!

Our Story Teller.

ELOPED AT HOME.

Julia de Force was a chip off the old block. The very same unbending will, indomitable courage, untiring energy and wise strategy that had made her father one of the ablest generals during the civil war had been bequeathed to her at her birth, together with her father's lofty brow, finely chiseled nose, and lips far too thin to be handsome in a woman but for the proud curl that gave beauty to the mouth as well as strength to the expression, and made one acknowledge them very kissable in spite of the scorn in their downward curve. Her eyes were blue and deep; her hair golden brown; her form slender and graceful, with a carriage dignified and stately, the pose and step of a queen. Julia loved, and loved against her father's will.

"He is old enough to be your father, and only seeks you for the sake of my money. Besides, he is a failure, 40, and nobody," said the father in a burst of indignation at what he chose to term his daughter's folly.

"He is not a boy, I will admit, father. But that he is a failure I positively deny," said the daughter in a tone whose pride and scorn seemed but an echo of the words he had just uttered. 'If success in money-making were all in life he would, indeed, be a magnificent failure. But in all that makes a man he is a grand success. He is a scholar of the largest culture, a lawyer of the finest ability, a poet of no mean capacity, and moreover these things, though his greatest, are not his only successes, for he has succeeded in gaining your daughter's undying love."

"You carry it with a high hand," broke forth the general, "but it's mighty little good your undying love will do him; about as little as my influence in getting him into congress. If you marry him—which you can do, of course, without my consent, since you are of age—you will have to elope, for my house shall never be the theatre to produce such a roaring farce as that."

"You have said it." And with a low bow, the very essence of hauteur and humility combined, Julia swept from her father's presence.

Graham Morton, the individual under discussion, had been an officer in the army, and though not brilliant in that role, his genius leading in a different direction, he had been a faithful soldier, and since the close of the war some of his admirers felt moved to propose him as a member of congress. A nomination by his party in the district to which he belonged was equivalent to election, since they had held a large majority, and a few such men as General de Force could easily secure it for a candidate.

* * * * * *

"That I will never do, Graham, not even for you," said Julia one evening, in reply to some proposition just made by her lover. "This home is my birthright," she continued; "I have never forfeited it by any act of disobedience during my whole minority, or even since. I have earned the right, therefore, to go from this house to that which shall be my second home when I have achieved it. I cannot go to our mutual home till I am your wife. I will go no place else to become so. I will not stand confessed a beggar on my wedding day."

"This means, Julia, that you repudiate our engagement?"

"It means no such thing, unless you choose it should," she replied. "It only means that I am too proud to run away to get married, if you are not above taking a castaway for a wife."

"I would take you, Julia," he replied clasping her proud form in his arms, "were you a castaway a hundred fold. But I did not even hint an elopment; that is not necessary, since we are both of age. I merely suggested going boldly to a hotel and then, in the presence of our friends, performing the marriage ceremony. Nothing so dreadful in that, is there?"

"But I owe a duty to myself," she rejoined, "and I never will consent to abate one jot of my claim. I am a perfect Shylock where my title to honor is concerned. But, dearest, I love you well enough to brave much for you," she added, with a downcast look and a delicate blush on her cheek, "and I have a plan, all my own, if you are soldier enough to enforce me."

"Test my courage in that direction," he whispered, kissing the glowing cheek; "you will never find me recreant when I am promised, as the spoils of the war-fare, the priceless loot of this dear hand. What is it, love?"

* * * * * *

Nancy's holiday came on a bright day two or three weeks after the foregoing conversation took place. Nancy was the De Force housemaid, who had, in addition to the parlors and chambers, the care of the dining-room also. In her absence Julia and her sister Kate undertook those duties. The dining-room had but two doors, one leading directly into the kitchen and the other opening into the main hall, the street being visible to one sitting at the end of the table next that door.

Julia, upon this very warm day, brought in all the courses at once, to save trouble, she said. Then she closed the door communicating with the kitchen, as was usual, to keep out odors and flies; but she did not explain why she locked it and put the key in her pocket. Kate was in the back parlor, running her fingers lightly over the piano keys, and Julia sat at the table—the place next the hall door—eating her dinner. She was dressed in a pretty, white muslin, her usual home dinner dress in summer time, though this was a new one, first worn that day. The meal had proceeded quietly for some time, when the gate was heard to open and close, and many steps at the door proclaimed the arrival of more than one caller. Julia, from her seat, could see that it was the gallant major, accompanied by the minister of their church and his wife, which fact was not disclosed to the rest of the family.

"Excuse me, mother, I have company," she said, rising. Upon going out she closed the door. "A very uncalled-for proceeding," thought the mother, but again the occupants of the dining room failed to perceive a key turn in the lock—in fact the keyhole was oiled. But shortly after her departure the general's quick ear discovered a sound like one praying in the front parlor, and as Miss Julia's company were not usually noted for piety, he started to investigate the matter. Trying the doors he found them both locked. But as his self-respect neither allow him to leap from the window nor make an outcry, he sat down and finished his dinner. Presently a part of the company withdrew and Kate made her appearance, looking perplexed and amused at the same time.

"General, your eldest daughter has out-generaled you," was her greeting.

"Pray explain; I do not deal in enigmas, and there seems to be enough of them," said the general in a testy tone.

"Julia has just been married in the parlor."

"What!" cried the mother, "Kate, are you mad?"

"And you aided and abetted her disobedience," said the general.

"Indeed, no, father. I knew there was some prank on hand, and stayed in the parlor at her request. But no one knew, not even the minister, the extent of the scheme till all was over. To be sure, I knew, which Mr. Lane did not, that the proceedings were without your knowledge, as well as without your sanction, but then I had not been made a confidant beforehand, and so was unable to prevent it if I would, and I did not feel it my duty to forbid the banns. But in truth, father," laughing in spite of herself, "I did not know you had become a prisoner of war till she gave me the keys as she went out."

"And so the jade is gone? Well, let her stay," said the general, composedly, wiping his mouth with his napkin.

"Mr. and Mrs. Lane are in the parlor and would like to see you both. They seem to feel very badly over their share of the business, though not to blame in the least. Go in, father and mother, and let them see that you exonerate them." Which the general did, and gayly entertained the company, to whom his wife only appeared to make an excuse. "She was so upset," she said.

In response to the note that Julia and her husband sent round that same evening from their cosy little home the general invited them to call on him whenever they chose, but declined their invitation to visit them.

The major received the nomination and was elected to congress without his father-in-law's help; but the general, though cordial enough from the very first when they visited him, and especially so after the birth of a youngster who took grandpa's name never entered their door. The stubbornness which won him many a battle would not allow such a capitulation, although it was evident that his unjust prejudices against the major had long since died out. Indeed, his son-in-law became his proudest possession by-and-by.

But Major Morton visited him all the oftener to make up the deficit in social account, and thus proved himself the nobler man of the two.

The Financial Side.

From the National Baptist.

When it is proposed to forbid the traffic in rum, not a few people urge that such a step would be an injury to the business prosperity of a town; they say that men who want to buy will come where they can have what they want to drink, and will shun a place where there are no bars. In other words, we must keep open a vast leak and let the ocean in, as a means of keeping the ship afloat. We must bleed the nation at the rate of $900,000,000 a year, in order to promote the public wealth. All these predictions were uttered about Atlanta before the late vote to forbid rum-selling; but now the four per cent. bonds of Atlanta are selling at par and above, which does not look like ruin and bankruptcy.

We have been much interested in a view of the results of temperance in Millville, N. J., as we find them given in the Bulletin of that town. We condense the article somewhat.

"Millville is a city of 8,824 inhabitants, being particularly a manufacturing town. The industrial features include one of the largest hollowware and flint glass factories in the country; a large cotton factory and bleachery; a foundry for the manufacture of gas and water pipe, besides other manufacturing enterprises. These establishments employ 2,000 persons, and adding to these the people engaged in the stores and small shops, swells the corps of the city's wage-earners to about 2,500.

"A complete temperance victory for Millville came in 1875. The council stood seven to two against license. By following up the victory at the polls, with legal vigilance, Millville has been kept reasonably free from the rum shop, both legal and illegal.

"To-day, two-thirds of the male adult employes of Whitall, Tatum & Co. own the houses in which they reside, and one-half of all the laborers of this manufacturing city go home at night to houses all their own. Upwards of $4,000 are paid into the Building and Loan Associations of the city every month by our laboring men, which represents only a part of the accumulated savings of Millville's toilers. When rum was king of the city, nearly all the laboring men ware tenants at will, and they did not have the luxurious homes they now enjoy, and the account of their savings could have been kept on the end of their fingers.

"The buildings erected in this city this year represent more than $100,000 in value; under the license system the annual output for improvements of this kind would not reach $40,000. The character of the buildings has been wonderfully improved, and art and architecture have been observed, since rum ceased to addle the brains of our citizens.

"When Millville was supporting four licensed hotels and ten or a dozen beer saloons, her revenue from liquor license did not exceed $700 or $800 per annum. The revenue derived from the increased valuation of property which has occurred in the city since the repudiation of license amounts to ten times as much as was ever derived from all the rum shops of the city.

"Two of the hotels, which used to keep open doors and open bars in the city, are now occupied as temperance hotels or boarding houses. Of the other two, one has been cut up into stores and the other used as a dwelling. The traveling public is better provided for than in the licensed days. It has been demonstrated that in most small cities and towns from one to a dozen taverns exist, beyond the needs of the public service, and their proprietors grow fat from selling rum. Such is the condition of things in Millville, that the proprietor of the leading hotel in the city says he would not have a license if it cost nothing, and this, when it was not very long ago when the keeping of a temperance hotel was considered such a dubious undertaking that a public subscription was made to maintain such an institution, and so get rid of the licensed tavern.

After the lapse of a dozen years of practically applied local prohibition, the measure is to-day so popular as to scarcely possess an opponent, and there is not a man in the city who has the temerity to run for an office as a license candidate. Prohibition in this prohibits, and is a moral, intellectual and financial blessing to the laboring man, whose best life and prosperity began when the rum shops left the town.

On Friday, May 21, the editor attended the Congress of Working men's clubs, which was held at Millville. He was delighted to observe the evidence of comfort and prosperity, and to learn of the grand results of the prohibition policy of the city. He will hereafter speak on this subject at large.

Watching Vanderbilt's Tomb.

All through Decoration Day in New York, when a national instinct seemed to call the people out to do honor to their dead, the grave of him who was the richest man on the continent remained bare of any testimonial of love or of remembrance. Only a faded wreath hung from the iron grating that guards the receiving vault where the remains of William H. Vanderbilt have found a temporary resting-place. All about the graveyards of the country blossomed, and the humblest tenant beneath those green mounds whose doors never outward swing had heaped above him those fragrant tokens of remembrance that love strews above her dead. It seemed an odd contrast that while every tomb in all the neighborhood should be dressed with flower-laden fingers this one should stand alone unmarked save by a wreath of withered roses that had given up their lives days before.

The same watchful care that guarded the bones of the dead Crœsus the first week of his burial still continues, and day and night sentries pace before the tomb and detectives sit near by. For five months this unceasing vigil has been kept, and through all the winter's snows through the tender green of spring and now into the full-leaved strength of summer that little band of keepers has never closed its eyes before the temporary tomb. Very lonesome this watch has been, and few people come to see this guarded grave. Once a month or so some member of the Vanderbilt family have driven to the spot for a few moments' stay, and they are about the only visitors the watchers have seen.

Everybody knows where the receiving vault is—just outside of New Dorp, on Staten Island. All about the country is dressed in its most coquettish coat of green and the hills that reach down in graceful sweeps seem there to shut in the peaceful spot from all rude intrusion. The little red house—one story, one-roomed, and all as temporary as the tomb—is the only sign of living thing at hand. Here Pinkerton's eight detectives live and sleep and watch, and from this rude shanty a little trail across the turf has been worn bare and hard by the pacing feet of the sentries. Two by two they march solemnly up and down, down and up the little path their feet have worn. Day or night the curious visitor can see them swinging to and fro before the tomb as monotonously and regularly as some great human pendulum. All are heavily armed, and at the little window in the red house that looks out upon the roadway, a man sits all day with a Winchester rifle in his hands. Two sentries are always on guard, relieving each other every four hours. Electric wires connect the house with alarm stations in New Dorp, and a hundred other precautions are taken to keep the most daring robbers from even making an attempt to violate the sanctity of the tomb.

The last time any of the family visited the tomb was the Saturday before Decoration Day, when Mrs. W. H. Vanderbilt drove up with her eldest son, Cornelius, and her youngest, George. The party went inside, remained about ten minutes, and then drove up the hill to where the new mausoleum is approaching completion up the winding road a quarter of a mile or so. The new tomb looks almost ready for occupancy. There is very little work to be done upon it, and one of the men in charge said that it would be completed next week. It overlooks the old Moravian Cemetery, and the site is the prettiest in all that neighborhood. The family have not yet completed arrangements for moving the remains, but it is thought the new interment will take place the last of the present month. It will be strictly private, and only the immediate family will be present at the simple service that will mark the removal.

A Circuit Convention.

Rev. J. Bruner Graham, of Snow Shoe, sends a programme of the exercises connected with a recent circuit convention held in the M. E. church in that place, to the Conference News. The convention was held on the 11th, 12th and 13th of June and the exercises were the following:

Curiosities of American Newspapers

Here is a curious item about newspapers which some one has compiled: "The number of pounds of type used in the newspapers of the United States is put at 6,589,878. The newspapers in five states—New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and Iowa set half the number of ems set in the United State. A pound of type averages about 370 ems, and an average of 2,500 ems is left in the cases. The average composition per newspaper is 74 147 ems for dailies, and for weeklies 57,197. The total amount of type set for one issue of the daily newspapers of the country would make 2,785 duodecimo volumes and all the papers in a year would represent as much type-work as would make 10,000 volumes equal to Appleton's Cyclopædia. A slip of the work would extend from the Atlantic to the Pacific Eight thousand persons are employed." The summary might be carried to a greater length with advantage, though omitting the figures. If only honest opinions were expressed in all those newspapers, men would not be abused merely because they have brain and are prominent; the circulation of some would fall off, and that of others would gain; and some men and some causes would go to the ground.

The earthquake may be a drawing attraction for the Summer resort on the Jersey coast, but the more conervative establishments will probably stick to the sea serpent with a head like a beer barrel, eyes resembling a pair of coke ovens and a tail extending two degrees beyond the equator. The introduction of new features into the entertainment provided at Summer resorts is commendable in its way, but the old reliable sea serpent is not to be forced to the rear by any little four by-seven earthquake or such gimcracks. He is a regular Summer visitor, he knows his stage of business and proposes to keep on doing business at the old stand—quake or no quake.

It is singular how one can be deceived in things. A scientist has discovered that a flash of lightning is not instantaneous, but has a duration of from "1-1000 to 1-1100 of a second." This is a difference, of course, but it is hardly enough to give a man time to dodge the flash."

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

The G. A. R. Post of Unionville.

MR. EDITOR:—Noticing in J. Clay's last "Unionvile Items" that he sadly misrepresented our G. A. R. Post, I take this opportunity of placing him right so that the many readers of your paper may not have a wrong impression as to our doings on Memorial Day.

He stated that Peters Brothers Post held Memorial Services and a Campfire in the evening at the Presbyterian church. Now, if I did not know J. Clay to be the honorable, upright and useful citizen and neighbor that he is, I might think the misrepresentation was intentional. I do not, however, for one moment think this was the case, neither do I believe that he is not in harmony with the spirit and workings of the order, but one thing I do know, that if he were to make himself not only more familiar with us as a Post and the nature of our campfire, but also with the Memorial Day Services which come once a year, he would readily distinguish a vast difference between the two.

The former is intended for fun and merriment by recalling the memory of the bright and shady sides of our soldier life, whilst the latter, is of the most solemn and impressive character—learning the lesson of a nation's sacrifice for union and freedom and impressing upon the minds of all the truth that "eternal vigilance alone is the price of our liberty;" calling to mind the brave and true who went out from their homes to dare and to do for their country; thinking of the unselfish devotion of the boys in blue who went down in death before the leaden storm of rebellion, whose warm hearts, forever stilled by the deadly missiles of war, like our own, throbbed with anxiety as the battle waxed hot about them; sorrowing for the loved and lost who never came back to greet their dear ones and tell them the story of their valor, because they are taking the soldier's last sleep, sleeping through all these years their manhood away."

May the time never come when the sacredness of this day will be desecrated by making it the occasion for frivolity and amusement.

In this connection I will say that Memorial Day with us this year was by far the best we have ever had.

The exceptionally fine weather gave all an opportunity to participate and an unusual interest was manifested.

Our Post was ready at 6 o'clock a. m. and with well ordered conveyances, we were soon speeding our way up the valley on our mission of love and duty, while the graceful folds of our National flag proudly kissed the breeze of the morning. We decorated the graves of thirty comrades of the war who lie in five different cemeteries, traveling a distance of twenty-two miles.

We were accompanied throughout by martial music, conducted by that prince of fifers, A. Girod, musician of the 45th Pa., and the accomplished drummer, G. W. Swinehart, of the 56th Pa. We were also accompanied at each place by a choir which rendered excellent music—singing some appropriate pieces in the most touching manner, under the management of Prof. J. A. Weaver, of State College, who brought with him the following singers: Mrs. Weaver and their little son, aged 8 years, (who sang sweetly) Miss Musser, Miss Tyson, Mr McCormick and David H. Weaver, post commander of Post 272. The principal feature of the day was at the old burying ground in Unionville, where, after the regular decoration ceremonies, we were addressed by Rev. Scott Wilson, who held us entraced for nearly an hour.

It would be impossible to describe his speech, which was impromptu, and do it justice, or even give an adequate idea of its force and power. It was not only pathetic, but broad and comprehensive. In fact, it was a stream of eloquence from the beginning to the end. Golden gems of thought, clothed in the most beautiful language, fell in thick profusion bright and sparkling from the lips of the silver-tongued orator. We were all sorry when he closed and would have been glad to listen another hour.

A very impressive part of this services was at the church in the evening where we held a special memorial service commemorative of the four deceased comrades of our Post. While the singing by Prof. Weaver's Choir gave much solemnity to the occasion, the address of Mrs. Dr. E. A. Russell was very touching indeed made more so by its manner of delivery while the words, it seems to us, could not have been better chosen. Her home being near the town of Gettysburg during the progress of that terrible battle, and witnessing immediately after, the sad havoc of life and limb, the result of the two great armies meeting in deadly combat during the three days previous, she was enabled to speak of these historic scenes from personal knowledge which made it all the more interesting and effective.

This, including addresses by Rev. Yerger and Dr. E. A. Russell, ended the labor of the day, which, commencing at 6 o'clock in the morning continued till 10 at night—a solid day which we all give a willing tribute to our Nation's dead. W. C. V.

GENUINE MERIT

IS SURE TO WIN.

We believe the RUSSIAN RHEUMATISM CURE has real, genuine merit. It is this faith which has led us to put our money into it so liberally. We have put more into it than money—money could not buy the fair name we have gained by twenty years of honorable business dealing right here on Market St., Philadelphia, and yet so great is our faith in the Russian Rheumatism Cure that we are willing to stake our reputation on it as a safe, speedy and permanent cure for all Rheumatic troubles. Could we offer any better guaranty of good faith? Others besides ourselves have tested its merits, and add their hearty and unequivocal endorsement.

We send to all who ask it a pamphlet containing much of such testimony. And yet if you have Rheumatism why suffer one day longer than is necessary. It costs only $2.50 to be cured, and while you are making up your mind to try it you might be made well. The has saved every Rheumatic sufferer who has given it a fair trial. It is for you to decide whether or not it shall cure you.

Price $2.50. If mailed, 10c. additional. If registered, 10c. more.

Annual and Six Months' Contracts at Special Rates

Anxious to See the Bride.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The public reception at the White House to-night was the largest of the kind ever witnessed here. Though the reception was not to be given until 9 o'clock, before 6 o'clock an immense crowd had gathered and taken its station in the vicinity of the main doors, and when they were thrown open a closely packed line of men women and children extended from the main entrance, down the carriage way, out of the north gate and east on Pennsylvania avenue to Fifteenth street. There were fully five thousand persons in line, and at 10 the number had not perceptibly diminished. The President and Mrs. Cleveland were assisted by Mr. Endicott, Mrs. Whitney and Mrs. Vilas. The floral decorations were similar to those of last Tuesday and the general arrangements practically the same. The President and Mrs Cleveland shook hands with all the throng, passed through the blue room, and the bride had a bright smile for each one and a kind word for those she recognized in the moving crowd.

Death of a Turkish Officer.

LONDON, June 20.—Hobart Pasha, marshal of the Turkish empire, is dead.

Augustus Charles Hobart, the typical, most adventurous and successful soldier of fortune of the century, was a younger son of the sixth earl of Buckinghamshire, who was descended from Mary, the daughter of the English patriot, John Hampden, who sacrificed his life at the battle of Chalgrove in serving parliament against King Charles I. in 1642. Born in 1823, he became a midshipman in the Royal navy in 1838, and proved his mettle and received his baptism of fire in the capture of slave ships in the Brazilian waters. In 1854-'55 he commanded a vessel of the English fleet in the Black sea, and distinguished himself by gallant conduct in attacks upon various Russian posts during the Crimean war.

When the civil war broke out in this country he was on the retired list of the English navy. The southern confederacy was in great need of naval officers and it eagerly accepted the services of Captain Hobart. He came to this country and from 1862 to 1864 employed his nautical skill and his courage in running the government blockade of the southern ports. He was in the pay of Collie & Co., of London, who represented an association of British merchants, who had put up the money and furnished the swift steamers that were engaged in dodging the men-of-war off the southern harbors.

Hobart was not excelled as a naval tactician and commander. His courage was indomitable and his skill unquestionable. His private life was scandalous. His large income was squandered in profligacy.

The Puritan Won.

NEW YORK, June 19. The race between the giant sloops to-day, under the auspices of the Seawanhaka Corinthian yacht club and for a subscription cup worth $1,000, was more satisfactory than either of those that have preceded it, but it did not prove which of the quartette was the best boat for the international match.

It was exactly 11 a. m. when the preparatory whistle was given. Five minutes after the starting signal was blown. During the first part of the stretch it remained anybody's race, and the Atlantic up from behind and was on not far from even terms. When all the yachts had straightened out for No 15 there was not much more between the Puritan, the leader, and the Atlantic, the last, than a quarter of a mile. But the Puritan got wind that none of the others felt by remaining to windward and she flew home, with everything set, like a true racer. She had been lucky in this respect all day. The Mayflower and Priscilla, and afterward the Mayflower and Atlantic, had some close fighting, but the Priscil a finally took second place. The Mayflower and the Atlantic crossed the home line only three seconds apart.

At Pennsylvania College.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., June 20.—The exercises of the fifty fourth annual commencement of Pennsylvania college are in progress this week. This morning President H. M. McKnight delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of twenty-four. He took his text from the 37th and 38th verses of the 4th chapter of St. John and for his theme "The continuity and succession in the labors of man with the dignity, importance and trust conditions of individual workers as sower and reaper." This evening Rev. F. D. Weigle, of Littlestown, Pa., addressed the Young Men's Christian association of the college and seminary. His text was Mark 10:43, and his subject was, "Christian greatness and the nature and manner of the attainment of the true marks and ultimate rewards."

David Davis Thought to be Dying

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., June 21.— Ex-Vice President David Davis is slowly but surely dying. "A point has been reached in his illness," said his physicians to day, "when it is thought best by his family to give the public a statement of the gravity of his condition. Mr. Davis is very ill indeed, and it will be but little less than a miracle if he should rally." Mr. Davis was taken ill at Chicago, on March 21, with a carbuncle on his shoulder. Up to two weeks ago his condition, though at times alarming, seemed to be one of improvement. Two weeks ago, however, severe erysipelas set in and is growing worse. For some weeks, too, his sufferings have been intensified and complicated by Bright's disease of the kidneys. Several Chicago physicians have been summonded for a consultation that will be held to-morrow.

Boston's Calamity.

BOSTON, June 22.—The fire which destroyed the New England Institute Fair building yesterday, and which also caused the loss of a number of lives, was doubtless incendiary. The structure was owned by the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, and had been used for storing and repairing cars. Several other buildings belonging to the company have recently been fired, and the blame placed upon discharged employes. It is not yet known how many perished in the building, but at least sixteen persons are missing. Nine bodies have been recovered from the ruins, but they were so terribly burned that it was impossible to identify some of them.

Seventeen-Year Locusts.

WILMANTIC, June 21.—The seventeen-year locusts have appeared at Ashford, Eastern Connecticut, and the din they make fills the country and is heard for miles. Just seventeen years ago they appeared in this part of the country. They do no damage. Mysteriously they appear, their deafening cry is heard for a few weeks, and then they suddenly disappear. Many people have visited Ashford to see the locusts. There is a peculiar mark on the back of the insect, which is interpreted to mean either war or peace for the country.

Briefs.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 20.—The baccalaureate sermon before the graduating class of Princeton college, numbering 113, was preached in Marquand chapel this morning by Dr. McCosh. A large congregation was present. The preacher chose as his text Mathew 10:29. Dr Patton, of the seminary, delivered an address in Murray hall in the afternoon, and Dr McKibben, of Pittsburg, preached in the chapel in the evening.

PITTSBURG, June 20.—Charles H. Bruckman, a prominent jeweler of Etna, Pa., was burned to death this morning. During the night his residence caught fire from a kitchen stove, and while trying to extinguish the flames his clothes ignited, and he was so terribly burned that he died in a few minutes.

ROME, June 19. Signor Supci, known as a former African explorer, has commenced a forty-day fast in emulation of Dr. Tanner. It is stated that he has neither drank nor eaten anything in a week. Several witnesses declare that his abstention is genuine.

DIGBY, N. S., June 21.—The question of secession at the polls has occasioned more frankness of expression by the people in regard to this earnest desire for annexation. Last week after the great victory by the liberals on the question at issue, a wealthy old sea captain of this place took a hatchet, stripped the limbs from the highest spruce tree on his farm and nailed the stars and stripes there. Then pointing at the flag he shouted "that is our next question to vote on and you will find before long two-thirds of us are that way of thinking."

LONDON, June 21.—The Standard attacks Mr. Joseph Chamberlain for what it calls "hinting at remitting with the liberals." It says: "Mr. Chamberlain has now said enough and more than enough about his personal sacrifices. Other men, who are totally silent about them, have made much greater sacrifices than he. Mr Chamberlain would do well to confine himself in the future to the public and general merits of the home rule controversy as much as possible."

QUEENSTOWN, June 21.—The ship Frank Pendleton at this port has on board the mate of the British bark Arklon, Captain Poe. The Arklon was in a collison on May 8 with an unknown vessel and was cut to the water's edge. The captain, his wife and child and ten seamen took to the life boat. The mate put off alone in a small open boat. It is feared the occupants of the life boat were lost. The mate had a most terrible experience.

HARRISBURG, June 21. John Till, one of Harrisburg's oldest citizens, died yesterday, aged 80 years. Mr. Till was one of the first men to build boats for the old Pennsylvania canal company. He filled various local offices, the last being that of city treasurer.

A War in Iowa.

CLINTON, Iowa, June 22.—About noon yesterday a saloonkeeper made a demonstration toward Marshal Judge, an informer in the saloon prosecution cases, when Judge shot August Feddersen, whom he thought was his assailant, but did not wound him seriously. Judge then ran to his room with Frank Hillerman, another informer. They got a shotgun and revolver, and when the city marshal tried to force an entrance to arrest them, he was shot, being taken for a member of the mob that was after them. Sam Hart and Mr Rhodes were also shot. Judge and Hillerman were taken by a guard to the jail followed by a mob.

During the melee, L. L. Abbott, a witness in another case, was pounded and badly bruised by the mob. The saloon element made threats of lynching Judge and Hillerman last night, and of blowing the jail up necessary to get the men. The saloon keepers have already held one meeting and have appointed another for to-night. There is much excitement in town. The saloonists threatened the Herald for opposing their interests.

A mob of saloonists attacked the jail after midnight this morning, intending to lynch two prohibitionists who are under arrest for alleged participation in Monday's riot. The sheriff and deputy fired into the mob, wounding four men, none of them seriously. Most of the crowd were drunk and all ran when the shooting commenced. To-day as a precaution the two prisoners were removed to state prison at Anamasca.

Morrison Again Knocked Out.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—In the house to day Mr. Morrison called up the proposition to change the rule making it in order to amend the general pension bill by adding a provision for the imposition of a tax to meet the expenditures required by the bill, and an interesting debate followed on pensions and the tariff. Upon its conclusion Mr. Morrison moved the previous question on the adoption of the resolution. Mr. Reed moved to lay the resolution on the table. The yeas and nays were ordered and resulted in the defeat of Reed's motion—yeas 126 nays 139. Before a vote could be taken on the original motion Reed moved an adjournment and the republicans by dilatory tactics managed to consume the time up to 5 o'clock and the house adjourned amid an outburst of applause and derisive laughter from the republicans.

Drowned in the River.

Special to Altoona Tribune.

CLEARFIELD, Pa., June 21—On Friday morning David R Dowler, son of Captain James Dowler, of Burnside, was drowned in the Susquehanna river, near what is called the "Little Basin," in the mountains. He was in company with another man employed on the James Cassidy drive, and was breaking some logs loose when they separated. In jumping onto a large log he fell and slipped into the river sinking instantly. Before help could reach him life was extinct. He received serious injuries by the fall on the log, disabling him, otherwise the accident would scarcely have had so tragic a termination. Young Mr. Dowler was 25 years of age.

Sued for Libel.

Special to Altoona Tribune.

HOUTZDALE, Pa., June 21.—White Nixon, editor of the Houtzdale Observer, was arrested and taken before Justice McGrath this morning by Reuben Lane, on charge of libel. Nixon waived a hearing, and George W. Dickey became his bondsman in the sum of $300 for his appearance at court. Nixon said in the Observer that Lane had been discharged for putting his tickets on cars belonging to other men, and then went on to denounce him as a man with whom honest miners ought to refuse to work.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

The County Prohibition Convention.

The Prohibitionists who believe in a third party met Tuesday in county convention in Y. M. C. A. hall. There were sixteen of them, and they confidently believed that other delegates would join them in the afternoon.

They began the business by making Rev. J. Zeigler chairman and Geo. W. Ganoe, of Philipsburg, secretary.

The singing of hymn No. 19, "Rescue the Perishing," was followed by prayer by Rev. M. B. Laning of Milesburg.

Then two committees were appointed, viz:

Committee on nomination of Delegates to the State Convention—J. Zeigler, J. B. Graham, C. Dinges.

Committee on Resolutions—C. Buck, Mrs. J. P. Harris, Mrs. J. C. Weaver, Dr. F. G. Mattern, J. J. Shivery, S. S. Lyon, M. B. Lanning.

Hon. A. A. Barker, of Ebensburg, addressed the convention and Mrs. E. M. Blanchard also spoke words of cheer. Convention adjourned to meet at 2.30 p. m.

The afternoon session of the Prohibition county convention began promptly at 2.30 o'clock with no larger attendance of delegates than were present at the morning session.

Rev. J. B. Graham invoked the Divine blessing.

The report of the committee on delegates to the State convention was read and accepted. It nominated the following regular delegates:

G. W. Ganoe, J. Zeigler, C. Buck, S. S. Lyon, R. B. Hartman, W. K. Krumbine, C. W. Rishel, N. C. Dinges.

Alternates—C. E. Murrey, Wm. H. Musser, Wm. P. Fisher, A. J. Shivery, Jno. Kimport, W. F. Florey, John Wolf, Jas. S. Lohr.

The committee on resolutions reported a series of resolutions which were both long and strong. They contained a few words of praise of the W. C. T. U., and in regard to its action on the question of a candidate for governor, the following quotation will explain:

"It was the further action of the convention that while they do not instruct their delegates they express their preference for Governor to be Hon. A. A. Barker, of Ebensburg."

A resolution was also adopted that a Prohibition county ticket be placed in the field, a committee of five empowered to make up the ticket being composed of J. Zeigler, C. Dinges, C. Buck, S. S. Lyon and Geo. W. Ganoe.

Three senatorial conferrees were appointed, viz: A. J. Shivery, J. B. Graham and Jno. Wolf. A similar number of congressional conferrees are C. Buck, S. S. Lyon and Dr. F. G. Mattern. The chairman was empowered to appoint a county committee consisting of two persons from each voting precinct, of which J. Zeigler is chairman, C. Dinges secretary and C. Buck treasurer.

Then an effort to raise a campaign fund met with immediate subscription of $50.

The convention was not a successful one in numbers present or interest of exercises.

—That intoxicated agent who made some commotion on the street, Monday, by being too free in his actions towards ladies who were strangers to him, is well known, although we will not give his name unless he repeats the offense. He should remain sober hereafter. He was discharged after giving $200 bail to appear at court.

The Memorial Services at Milesburg.

We have been unable, until to-day, to give a detailed account of the memorial services for the members of Post 261 who died during the year, which was held in the Methodist Episcopal church, Milesburg, on Sunday evening, June 20. These dead comrades, members of the old army and buried by Post 261 during the year, were—

Nicholas Eckley, Co. G., 51st P. V.

Abram Heaton, Co. —, 200th P. V.

Thomas Taylor, Co. L., 19th Pa. Cav.

A large number of Post 95, a few of Post 262, and Andrew Gregg, commander of Post 282, came to assist the members of 261. At 7.30 o'clock all the comrades marched into the church and took seats reserved for them in front of the pulpit. As no service was held in any of the other churches in the town that evening (they having abandoned their services to unite in this memorial meeting) there was a general attendance of the people, and the church was crowded. Seated at the right of Commander Curtin was James P. Sayers, commander of Post 120, Washington, Pa., who was visiting the commander. Mr. Sayers is also inspector of 2d brigade, N. G. P. At the left sat John Noll, commander of Post 95. At the right of the commander of 261 was John G. Love, of Post 95, who was to deliver the address.

The choir, led by Mr. L. T. Eddy, sang a hymn. Rev. Mr Woodcock, chaplain of 95, offered a prayer, and after another hymn was sung, the service as contained in the service book, page 43, was begun. The adjutant was called upon for the records of the deceased comrades. The drummer (Mr. Spence) gave three rolls on a muffled drum after each record. The chaplain of the Post (Thos. Wilson) began the responsive service, the comrades all responding. A chant by the choir followed and then Rev. Mr Woodcock offered a prayer, closing it with the Lord's Prayer, in which all united audibly. After this the reverend comrade read the 90th Psalm.

Comrade Love, being introduced, delivered a very appropriate address. The Commander call on the S. V. C. (Stanley K. Watson), who responded. The J. V C (James Bradley) being called upon, gave his response. The comrades marched out first, the congregation remaining in their seats until the last soldier had disappeared.

All the services were solemn and impressive and the address was able, the closest attention being given by the congregation. The families of the dead comrades were present. The W. R. C. connected with the Post attended in full force. The singing was excellent.

Children's Day Echoes from Pine Grove Mills.

Will you allow me space in your columns to tell your readers what a pleasant hour we had on Children's Day in the Presbyterian Church, Pine Grove Mills. The pulpit was tastefully and beautifully arched with evergreens and flowers. Conspicuous among the flowers were some lovely rhododendrons and here and there the tall graceful ferns sprang up as if they had never been uprooted, making the place look so cool and refreshing and inviting that we forgot it was a warm day. Appropriate mottos were within the arches, such as "Christ the Door," "Feed my Lambs," &c. The chandelier and gallery were also decorated. The singing of the Sabbath school children was good, their sweet, youthful voices harmonized with the tone of the organ and fell upon our ear with sweet melody. Two little girls played the organ while they sang, and did their part so admirably that we could scarcely keep from applauding. We had a lecture by Rev. J. M. Gobeen, a returned missionary from India, that was full of interest. Mr. Gobeen has spent eleven years in that country and he impresses his hearers that his whole heart is in his work. We were sorry indeed when his lecture closed. The house was filled from pulpit to vestibule. The isles provided with benches were full and every available corner provided with a chair and many stood. Conspicuous among those near the pulpit were our two venerable elders, Messrs. Glenn and Patton. Mr. Patton has been superintendent of the Sabbath-school for half a century. They looked as if they had renewed their youth and were enjoying Children's Day. We were indebted to Dr. G. W Woods for the pleasure of the hour. He secured the services of Rev. J. M. Gobeen, and also drilled the little ones to sing so well. We think he was amply rewarded for his trouble, if thanks were all that's necessary.

Academy.

We understand there was Monday night a lively and harmonious meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Bellefonte Academy. It was evident that there was a determination on the part of all the members to have the debt lifted from the Institution, its title restored and steam heat introduced without delay.

—A sorrel horse, 16½ hands high, bald face, left hind foot white, was stolen from the stable of Mr. George D. Blair, at Huntingdon Furnace, Huntingdon county, Monday night. A bridle, halter, and covered saddle were also stolen. A reward of $50 is offered for the recovery of the horse and conviction of the thief.

SPECIAL MENTION.

Headache in most cases proceeds from a torpid liver and impurities of the stomach. It can invariably be cured by taking Simmons Liver Regulator. Let all who suffer, remember that sick and nervous headaches can be prevented by taking a dose as soon as their symptoms indicate the coming of an attack.

"Simmons Liver Regulator is a very valuable remedy for dyspepsia, sick headache, torpid liver, constipation, piles and such like diseases. S. W. HOLT, President S. W. R. R. Co. of Ga.

—We regret to learn that Mr. Robert Downing, of Loveville, is seriously ill with what is known as black erysipelas. A consultation of physicians did not result in giving any hope of his recovery. We hope, however, that he will do better than even the doctors predict.

100 Doses One Dollar

Is inseparably connected with Hood's Sarsaparilla, and is true of no other medicine. It is an unanswerable argument as to strength and economy, when thousands testify to its superior blood-purifying and strengthening qualities. A bottle of Hoods Sarsaparilla contains 100 doses and will last a month, while others will average to last not over a week. Hence, for economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla.

—The Bellefonte base ball nine expects to go to Mill Hall next Saturday to play the nine at the latter place. It will be a lively game and of course Bellefonte will come off first best. An excursion of base ball admirers should accompany the club.

Unionville Siftings.

All is quiet as usual, except the younger portion of the population are excited over the town being papered for two circus shows; one at Tyrone, the other at Bellefonte.

The farmers are already at work making clover hay, and the wheat and rye are beginning to partake of the golden hue and will ere long be ready for the sickle. The corn and oats are booming under the influence of fine showers and warm sunshine.

J. Clay says he stands corrected in regard to the "Post" of this place having a campfire on the evening of Decoration day. He was not present at the evening meeting, but received this information from one pretty closely connected with the "Post," so he must conclude his informant was wrong. He is obliged to "W. C. V." for his information and advice, but was not in the army himself, therefore does not naturally take as much interest in a soldier's organization as his adviser. At the same time is very willing to grant all the honor due the soldier for his services to the country, and is in sympathy with any essential movement he may make in the time of peace.

We had occasion to make a visit to the old Beaver Mills on the Allegheny a few days ago and found the manufacturing of lumber going on still, as it has for the last thirty years (except more improved machinery is now used). The business is now under the skillful management of Mr. H. S. Sayre of Bellefonte, and many teams are sent out daily to the R. Road at Julian freighted with lumber.

He thinks the mill will soon have to be moved from its present site to one where the balance of the timber can be more cheaply transported to it.

Mr. Gordon Wyche, the genial clerk at the mill store, is always ready to meet his customers with a kind greeting and seems to be one of the necessities of the place.

Mr. John Long is living there and making money off of a track of land which was supposed to be stripped of timber years ago.

The boiling spring, mountain air, boating and fishing make that region a fine resort for those seeking pleasure, and rest from official duty.

They say one of our Unionville citizens was out there not long since and gave them a lesson on temperance and prohibition and handled his subject well, but the third partyism they are not willing to accept. J.

—One of the most interesting places in Centre county is the home of William Decker, of near Hublersburg. While tarrying there the other day we visited his famous spring. With a stick he reached to the bottom of the spring and stirred up the gravel and sand, just a little, and instantly the water was in commotion. Dozens of immense trout came to the surface, dashing to and fro to get in the clear water. Mr. Decker lifted one of them in a net and measured it. In length it was 16 inches, 9½ inches in circumference and when its jaws were opened they extended 4½ inches. There are doubtless larger ones in the spring and it contains about sixty that average this size. The trout are very tame and will come to the surface and eat bread from your hand. Mr. Decker has reason to be proud of them. On his farm is also a boiling spring which rivals the famous boiling spring near this place. Mr. Decker keeps a great many fine cows and has plenty of fresh milk, from which he makes golden butter, keeping it fresh and sweet in the spring houses built over these springs. He is packing a large quantity of butter. While looking through his farm we noticed six head of the finest cattle, grain fed, that we have seen in Centre county.

—Mr. Christ Swartz, of Hublersburg, is one of the most successful farmers in Centre county. Among the most attractive parts of his farm this year is surely 24 acres of as fine corn as the sun shines on. His wheat field also presents a good appearance when compared with many we have seen in this county the present season, and the old saying "as good as wheat" will surely prove true in this case. He does not confine himself to grain and vegetable farming, but also cultivates poultry and sells chickens and turkeys in immense quantity. Fifty dollars' worth of turkeys were disposed of by him last fall. His cattle and other stock is exceedingly fine and butchers who buy of him are fortunate. On Monday he sold two cattle which would do any butcher's heart good to look at. His stock of horses is equally good, there being among them a four year old animal which weighs 1200 lbs.

—Miss Maggie McDermott, of Williamsport, was arrested Saturday evening on the charge of causing the death of Mrs. Leopold Loninger, of Beverly, N. J., by administering arsenical poison. Miss McDermott acted as nurse for Mrs. Loninger during the illness of the latter lady. There seems to be no evidence against Miss McDermott and the arrest is a high handed wrong. The persons who caused her arrest should be prosecuted for false imprisonment.

—Harry Harris, a lad living at Scotia, was run over by an ore car a few days ago and his left leg was fearfully crushed. It is believed, however, that it will not be necessary to amputate the limb.

—Perhaps the most important event which has occurred in Unionville during the week was the peculiar actions of an old gentleman who entered Resides' store at that place on Monday morning. He asked the clerk, Mr. Lucas, to give him paper, envelope, ink and pen and wrote a note to his wife in Binghamton, N. Y. Mr. Lucas read the note which he says gave some directions to his wife about the pension which he is drawing and then told her that by the time she received the letter he would be dead. The name signed to the letter was "Diehl." The man had a dissipated appearance though his countenance did not seem to express quite as much desperation as the note would lead one to believe was his condition. His clothes were respectable though considerably worn. He departed from Unionville on the morning train, west. The motive for writing such a note can only be imagined, but inasmuch as he displayed its contents he may have had no further intention than to arouse the sympathy of others and thus procure money from them.

—A celebration of considerable importance is to occur on the 2d day of July. In reality, the 25th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Hughes will be Thursday, July 1, but they will find it more convenient to celebrate the event on Friday, the 2d, and are preparing to do so. Cards of invitation have been sent to their former pupils and to relatives to meet with them and assist in the celebration. In calling to remembrance those who have been pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Hughes, not only in the Bellefonte Academy, but also in other educational institutions over which they have presided, they can number perhaps a thousand, and an endeavor will be made to include all whose present address is known to them. The list includes lawyers and all the professions, merchants, manufacturers and persons engaged in trades. It will certainly be an event of much interest to all concerned.

—An accident occurred on Saturday to Mr. Daniel Delaney, who resides near Jacksonville. He was engaged in cutting down trees for Mr. Zeigler in Little Sugar Valley. A man who was working not far away heard a tree fall and, falling afterwards to hear the sound of Mr. Delaney's axe, went to see what had happened, and to his horror found Mr. Delaney fastened beneath the tree. He succeeded in liberating the captive. Mr. Delaney was severely hurt, his collar bone and several ribs being broken. When last heard from he was resting comfortably with the prospect of recovery.

OUR CUSTOMERS

Express themselves as being well pleased with our

NEW SYSTEM OF DOING BUSINESS,

And as we are also pleased it is not likely that we shall ever do a

Big Profit and Long Credit

BUSINESS AGAIN.

Our terms are Cash, and positively not over thirty days to responsible parties.

Any farmer that is worthy of credit can borrow money at 6 per cent. and then pay the merchant cash, and save at least 20 per cent., and then if you buy goods at a cash store you don't pay for another man's credit. We have proven beyond question that you can save money by paying cash. A credit store can talk about selling their CASH CUSTOMERS cheap, but they can't do it, and a person with ordinary intelligence knows they can't, and any one that don't know why they can't, we can enlighten them upon the subject. Our experiment has been a success; who knows it better than our customers? We have a Large and Complete Stock for the SPRING TRADE.

Hon. A. A. Barker, of Ebensburg, addressed a small audience in the rink Tuesday night.

Mr. William Wigton, of Philipsburg, contributed his handsome presence to Bellefonte Wednesday morning.

Mr. Guyer Mattern, of Scotia, visited Bellefonte Wednesday. He reports business very active in ore shipments from that locality.

—The citizens of Scotia have completed arrangements for a grand union celebration and basket picnic on July 3. All persons desiring to participate in the parade, including veterans, sons of veterans, citizens and children, will meet at Mattern's store, at 8.30 a. m., July 3, and an hour later the line will form and move forward a short distance, forming a hollow square at the flag staff, for the purpose of saluting the large flag, which is to be raised for the occasion. A march of fifteen minutes will bring all to the entrance of the grove, where an address of welcome will be delivered at 10.30 a. m. The Declaration of Independence will then be read, after which two or three prominent gentlemen will deliver orations suitable to the occasion. A cornet band will be present and enliven the proceedings with excellent music. Everybody is cordially invited to attend.

—A somewhat peculiar accident occurred to Dr. Rothrock, the dentist, at his home in Zion a few days ago. He had gone into the garden in company with his large dog, his object we believe being to look after the chickens. The dog gamboled along and frisked about as even large dogs will sometimes and in one of his dashes run up against his master with sufficient force to knock him down. In falling Dr. Rothrock struck against a stone pile, and for a while he was unconscious. He has almost recovered from the effects of the accident.

—A railing which is more substantial than beautiful is being constructed along the creek on Water street north of the High street bridge. We are glad to see this as we have often thought that it would be a particularly dangerous place, especially if a runaway team should run down High street, and turn in that direction.

—The Washington M. E. Sunday-school at Lamar, Clinton county, held an ice cream festival on Saturday evening, which was quite successful considering the fact that the evening was too cool to make such refreshments very tempting.

The warm weather often has a debilitating effect. Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes all languor and lassitude.

Medical.

THE WONDER

Is becoming universal as to how such an immense sale could be created in Lowell for HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. But, my friend, if you could stand behind our counter a week and hear what those say who are using it, the reason would appear as clear as the noon-day sun. The real curative power of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA demonstrates itself in every case where our directions are faithfully regarded. We would that we might get before the people a fractional part of the confidence that is expressed to us every day in this medicine by those who have carefully noted (without prejudice) its effects upon the blood and through that upon the whole system, stimulating all the functions of the body to perform the duties nature requires of them. Try a bottle and satisfy yourself.

Cold Hands and Feet.

LOWELL, Feb. 3, 1879.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—About one year ago my daughter commenced taking your Sarsaparilla. At that time she had very little appetite; could take no long walks, and her face was badly broken out with a humor. She was low-spirited; troubled with cold hands and feet; her blood seemed to be poor, and she was in a condition which caused us great anxiety. After taking one bottle of your Sarsaparilla she began to improve; and she now has a good appetite and can take much longer walks. Her humor is nothing compared with what it was one year ago. She is in better spirits, is not troubled with cold hands and feet as previously. And I attribute this improvement in her condition largely to your Sarsaparilla. She has taken six bottles, and intends to continue its use. I was inclined to oppose the trial of it at first. I now have great faith in it as a blood purifier. Very truly yours,

A. L. HINCKLEY,

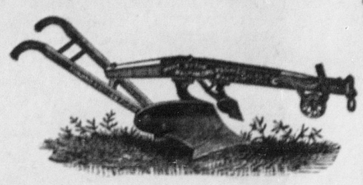
Farm Implements, and Fertilizers.

FARMERS SUPPLIES!

PLOWS.



Thorough plowing and pulverization of the soil is the foundation upon which the successful farmer builds his prosperity. To accomplish this, the character of the plow becomes a matter of the first importance. We present the

to our farmer friends with the assurance that it is not a new invention; nevertheless, it embodies all the improvements known to plow manufacturers. It has an established and enviable reputation, of MANY YEARS STANDING, as being the best bevel land side plow now in use. We assure our friends that a BEVEL LAND SIDE PLOW is superior to any straight land side plow.

The ROLAND CHILLED PLOW is manufactured of the best material, and is of the most perfect workmanship. The parts subject to wear are so chilled as to give strength as well as durability.

Its construction warrants light draft, and it runs so steady that a boy who can drive the team can man the plow—either for two or three horses—and execute the best mechanical plowing.

It will clean or scour in any soil from the start. It is furnished with solid or slip-pointed shares for ordinary or deep plowing. It is equally a successful plow in soft, hard or gravelly soil, and will turn a furrow up hill as complete as on the level ground.

We invite a critical examination of the construction of this plow as well as a thorough test in plowing.

We offer it for sale at remarkably low prices, and on liberal terms.

We keep a stock of shares and other parts for the OLIVER and SYRACUSE Chilled Plows.

CULTIVATORS.

are the farmers favorite, and need no commendation from us. We are the authorized agents for their sale in this part of Centre county. The CHAMPION is the new Hench walking cultivator, a remarkably neat and well constructed implement, and is a credit to the skill and workmanship of these leading cultivator manufacturers. We invite those in want of cultivators to inspect those on exhibition at our store. We can assure our friends that there are no other cultivators in the market equal to the HENCH.

One-horse Cultivators and Shovel Plows that defy competition in prices.

HAY RAKES.

We are selling the

CHAMPION

horse hay rake for $16 50, and a better rake for $17.50. We sell the hay rake, which is the best hay rake in the world, at astonishingly low prices.

TIGER SELF-DUMP

HAY TEDDERS.

The large crop of grass now growing, will be hard to handle unless farmers use hay tedders. The

BURDICK

HAY TEDDER is the BEST.

HAY FORKS! Double Harpoon Hay Forks. Price, $1.25 each.

GRAIN DRILLS.

We are the authorized agents for the sale of the CHAMPION and PENNSYLVANIA GRAIN DRILLS. These drills are complete in construction, and are guaranteed to sow grain, seed and fertilizers in the best farmer-like manner. We are prepared to furnish these drills at prices which will justify farmers in buying them. Farmers in want of drills will promote their interests by calling on us and examine the drills and prices for themselves.

Buggies and Platform Spring Wagons.

A customer after examining our spring wagons a few days ago, said we had the best wagons for the least money he had seen in Centre county.

Auburn Road and Farm Wagons.

These wagons are made to our order; with steel skeins or steel axles, and we offer them to our customers with full confidence that they are the best wagons ever sold in this vicinity.

Fruit Evaporators. The outlook for a large crop of good fruit is very favorable. A fruit evaporator does not cost so much money, nevertheless, it can be made more profitable than a cider mill. An elegant opportunity for families of two or three boys to learn a new business and make some money. Call and examine the sample at our store.

FERTILIZERS.

We sell six grades of fertilizers; we assure the farmers of Centre county that we deal in no shoddy goods. In purchasing, the quality is our first consideration and we guarantee every grade of fertilizer we sell is of the quality represented.

CROCKERS' BUFFALO HONEST FERTILIZER

of which we are Sole Agents in this territory, needs no commendation at our hands. It has always realized to the farmer a fair equivalent for the money invested.

In addition to the above we have arranged for the balance of our stock with the Chemical Co. of Canton, located in a suburb of the city of Baltimore, Md.

This company is composed of the Bakers of Baltimore, who formerly conducted the business in their own name and is a house of undoubted reputation for furnishing exactly what they represent.

From this company we obtain five grades of fertilizers—

Dissolved South Carolina Bone,
Dissolved South Carolina Bone and Potash,
Soluable Alkaline Bone Phosphate,
Resurgam Guano and Bakers Standard Guano;

either of which is of the highest standard of quality in its class.

We sold this brand of DISSOLVED SOUTH CAROLINA BONE or ROCK in the vicinity of the Pennsylvania State College last fall—1885—in competition with two other brands, all of which were analyzed at that institution. The Rock we sold proved to be fifty eight cents per ton more valuable than one of its competitors, and four dollars and forty eight cents per ton more valuable than the other, all of which were sold to the farmers at about the same price. This fact should induce farmers to buy fertilizers from dealers who know what they are selling and have the common honesty to sell what they represent.

We invite a careful inspection of the quality of the fertilizers we offer for sale, as well as the prices of the same, including such information as we are always prepared to furnish thereto.

HYDHAULIC CEMENT.

We have been induced to enter into the cement business, for the reason that MR. WILLIAM SHORTLIDGE'S long connection with the Water Works of Bellefonte gave him an extended opportunity to see the effects of using poor and standard cements. We can assure our customers that the cements in which we deal are of uniform quality and of the highest standard of excellence.

We carry a stock of AKRON, ROSENDALE "Hoffman Brand," and the ENGLISH PORTLAND.

The AKRON has been manufactured during the last 40 years and has been used in the construction of some of the most elaborate Railroad bridges and reservoirs in the United States. Thomas Collins, the well known railroad contractor, informs us that he has used thousands of barrels of it, who recommends it as being a most excellent article. The AKRON cement is being used in the construction of the Croton aqueduct, which will convey water forty two miles to the city of New York. This of itself, is a sufficient guarantee of its superior quality.

We sell the ROSENDALE cement "Hoffman Brand," which is so well known that it needs no commendation at our hands. We keep in stock the ENGLISH PORTLAND cement, the best artificial cement in the world.

We exercise our best judgment in purchasing stock, and spare no efforts to furnish what we represent and trust the community will appreciate our motives by favoring us with a share of their patronage.

There is a growing practice of venders calling on farmers to sell them their supplies, who succeed in obtaining higher prices for what they sell, with dinner and horse feed thrown in, than the same articles can be purchased of us at our store. We invite farmers to investigate this matter, examine articles and prices before making up their minds to purchase. Visitors are ALWAYS WELCOME whether they buy or not, and WE TAKE PLEASURE IN EXHIBITING WHAT WE HAVE TO SELL.

Morrison's Bill Defeated.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—In anticipation of the tariff bill coming to the surface of the legislative sea this morning, there was an unusually large number of members present when the house was called to order. The gentlemen having charge of pairs on the respective sides of the house were kept busily at work, and the chief, indeed, the only, topic of conversation upon the floor was the probable fate of the coming motion to consider the Morrison bill.

After the house had transacted some routine business, Mr. Hiscock, of New York, stating that there was an understanding that a motion would be made to-day to go into committee of the whole on the tariff bill, inquired of Mr. Morrison at what hour he intended to make the motion.

Mr. Morrison replied that it was his intention to make the motion at 1 30 o'clock. The house then proceeded to the consideration of the land forfeiture bills. At the hour mentioned Mr. Morrison's motion to go into committee of the whole to consider the tariff bill was defeated: Yeas, 140; nays, 157. The speaker voted for consideration. Great applause greeted the announcement. Mr Morrison gave notice that he would renew his motion on Tuesday next, and Mr. McKinley stated that the opponents of the bill would be on hand.

An analysis of the vote on Mr. Morrison's motion to go into committee of the whole, shows that of 140 affirmative votes, 136 were cast by democrats and four by Republicans. Three of the Republicans are from the state of Minnesota, Nelson, Strait and Wakefield, and the fourth, James, is one of New York's representatives. Of 136 Democratic votes 122 were cast by representatives from the south and west, and fourteen by representatives from the eastern and middle states. The Ohio Democrats voting for the bill were Anderson, Hill and Outhwaite; the New York Democrats, Adams, Beach, Belmont, Felix, Cromwell, Hewitt and Mahony; the Pennsylvania Democrats, Scott, Storm and Swope. Of 157 negative votes, 122 were cast by Republicans, and 35 by Democrats.

Of the thirty-five democrats voting in the negative, six came from the southern states, as follows: Maryland, Findlay; Louisiana, Gay, Iron, St. Martin and Wallace; Alabama, Martin. The western states contributed eleven negative votes, as follows: California, Healey; Illinois, Lafter and Ward; Ohio, Campbell, Ellsberry, Foran, Geddes, Lefevre, Seney, Warner and Wilkins. The remaining democratic negative votes were cast by members from New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, as follows: New York, Anson, Bliss, J. Campbell, T. J. Campbell, Dowdney, Merriman, Muller, Pendar, Spriggs, Stahnecker and Viller; New Jersey, Green, McAdoo and Pidcock; Pennsylvania, Boyle, Curtin, Ermentrout, Randall and Snowden.

The Seale Signed.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 16.—The conference committee of the iron manufacturers signed the scale of the Amalgamated convention shortly after 8 o'clock this evening and the iron mills throughout the country will run another year without stopping through labor troubles. The sessions held day after day were for the considering of each specification in the scale and at times long arguments were had over what were appropriation trifles, but one by one they were disposed of until the scale as amended by the conference was signed as a whole at the time mentioned. This afternoon's session began at 2 o'clock and was not adjourned until the iron workers were prepared to telegraph to the mills throughout the country: "The scale has been signed."

The matters not included in the scale as signed are the nailers' scale and the scale for the roll turners. It was agreed in the conference that the consideration of the nailers scale be postponed until June 13, when it is expected it will be satisfactorily settled. The roll turners' scale is left in the condition it has been in the past year, though it was agreed on both sides that the matter should be included in the scale of work at the conference next year.

The scale as signed is that of the present year, viz: $5 per ton for puddling iron based on a 2-cent scale for selling. The meeting was harmonious throughout and nothing occurred to cause ill feeling on either side. Secretary Martin, of the Amalgamated association, said to-night that the scale as signed is satisfactory to the workers and manufacturers alike. The scale as signed is that of the present year, viz: Five dollars for puddling iron based on a 2-cent scale for selling.

Of Course, Herdic will Get It

HUNTINGDON, June 16.—Peter Herdic, once known as a Williamsport lumber king, received the contract a year ago to supply Huntingdon with water. Yesterday his men were excavating at the new reservoir at the head of Fifth street. When at the depth of about eight feet from the surface J. D. McClain, Herdic's foreman, discovered an earthen pot, securely sealed, which was filled with Mexican and American gold and silver coin of ancient date. McClain refused to make public the amount of money the pot contained, but his friends say it is several thousand dollars. As soon as the discovery was made known Mr. Herdic put in a claim for the treasure on the ground that it was found on his property, while McClain insists that it is his under the common law relating to treasure trove. Mrs. Christian Colestock is another claimant. Her deceased husband sold the land to Herdic, and the widow alleges that the money was buried by Colestock years ago for safe keeping. All the parties have employed counsel, and the ownership of the contents of the pot will be contested in court.

Maxwell May Get a Rehearing.

ST. LOUIS, June 17.—Four more affidavits have been filed in support of the motion for a new trial in the Maxwell case. In three of the affidavits parties swear that Juror Jesse Sears expressed an opinion unfavorable to the prisoner previous to the trial. The fourth is in regard to Juror Callahan. It is made by Henry Flood, in the wall paper business. He alleges that in August, 1885, he heard Callahan say, in talking of the Southern hotel tragedy: "Maxwell ought to be hung, and I would like to help hang him." The defense feel confident of securing a rehearing.

Briefs.

BELAIR, Md., June 17.—Caleb Spicer, a farmer, 62 years of age, living near this place, last night came to town and indulged freely in liquor. He returned home at an early hour this morning and began abusing his wife. She called for help and their son George came to her assistance. The old man commenced to beat his son and the latter drew a pistol and shot his father in the neck, severing the jugular vein. The old gentleman died in a few moments. The son has been arrested, but is believed to have acted in self-defense.

FITTSBURG, June 17.—The heaviest rain of the season visited this section last night and this morning. In various parts of the city stores were flooded, and on Mulberry alley twenty families were washed out of their houses by a gas trench overflowing and filling the dwellings. Water washouts and landslides are reported on several railroads, and trains are badly delayed. The rivers are rising rapidly and from present indications there will be water sufficient to allow shipments of six or eight million bushels of coal to the lower parts.

LONDON, June 17.—In a speech at Chesterfield evening Earl Spencer, lord president of the council, intimated that the land purchase bill would not be dropped. He said that the government was defeated by a combination of two parties, which were unable to form a government, either singly or combined, because they agreed upon no policy except that of opposing Mr. Gladstone.

PARIS, June 17.—M. Goblet, minister of public instruction, has prohibited the meeting of the church congress, arranged to be held at Toulouse. The archbishop of Toulouse protests that the congress is to be devotional and not deliberative, and denies that the office of public instruction has the power to prohibit its meeting.

SCRANTON, Pa., June 17.—The Pennsylvania state board of agriculture to-day passed a resolution requesting the United States senate to pass the house bill regulating the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 17.—Messrs. McCullough, of the Pennsylvania lines, and Ingalls, of the Big Four road, who are in the city attending a meeting of the Union railroad company, unite in saying that P. S. Hayes, formerly vice president of the Wabash and Missouri Pacific lines, is to be president of the Bee Line.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Secretary and Mrs. Endicott gave a dinner in honor of the president and Mrs. Cleveland, this evening at their residence on Sixteenth street.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The Tammany hall committee organization have unanimously voted to have apointed a committee of one from each assembly district to collect subscriptions for the benefit of Parnell in the coming elections. Gladstone and Parnell were highly eulogized in the resolutions that were adopted.

YORK, Pa., June 18.—The agent of the Sunday Telegram, published at Harrisburg, was arrested here to-day on a charge of scandalous and malicious libel preferred by Dr. James A. Dale. He furnished bail for court. It is said that suit will also be brought against the manager of the paper.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—In the senate the Fitz John Porter bill was made the special order for Thursday next. Vance's bill to repeal the civil service law was indefinitely postponed.

HAZLETON, Pa., June 18.—In an altercation to day at a coal tripping at Yorktown between Dennis O'Connor, a boss, and Michael Badute, an Italian laborer, the latter was struck on the head by O'Conner with a heavy shovel and fatally injured, the top of his head being crushed in. O'Conner was at once arrested and committed to the Mauch Chunk jail. He claims the blow was struck in self defense.

Ruin Wrought by a Cyclone.

DENTON, Texas, June 18.—This and adjacent counties were visited Wednesday afternoon and night by a cyclone, which did great damage. In this (Denton) county the storm demolished the house of Mrs. Prigmore, who with her daughter were buried in the ruins. The mother was fatally injured. The daughter will recover. The residence of Dr. J. W. Rotherford was blown bodily from its foundation and turned over on its side. The family escaped, having fled to their storm cave. Many barns, sheds and outhouses were blown down and the school house at Stoney was completely wrecked. School had been dismissed, however, ou and fatalities resulted. At Pilot Point signs and awnings were carried away, and houses were unroofed. Williams & Newbury's warehouse was moved by the force of the wind forty feet from its foundation. Kendall's grain warehouse was unroofed and a large amount in the various yards was hurled promiscuously about.

At Bloomfield similar damage was done and Dr. Riley's dwelling was blown to pieces. At McKinney the bridge over Wilson creek was completely wrecked. Gullett's grocery store was badly damaged, the roof being carried off and the front of the building blown in. Corn was laid low and cotton severely damaged. At Pleasant Valley the wind was more violent and blew down the Presbyterian and overturned the Method st church, completely wrecking both. At Waco, J. C. Schaefer was struck by lightning and severely injured. He will probably die. The storm is regarded as the most serious ever known in this region, and the damage to crops, it is feared, was very great, and further reports of the loss of life are expected.

The Soldiers were Knocked Out.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Panama advices of the 10th have the following; A terrible affray has occurred at Bogota, capital of the republic, between the guard of the prison and members of the National battalions. One general, several officers and thirty soldiers were killed. The affray is looked upon as the outcome of an old grudge between the guards and soldiers without any political significance whatever.

Didn't Nominate Himself.

LEWISBURG, Pa., June 17.—Charles S. Wolfe to-day issued a statement to the press requesting the correction of a misstatement that he nominated himself as a prohibition candidate for governor at Bradford, or that he ever said he would accept such nomination if tendered. He says he would not accept the nomination even if tendered him unless he was convinced such acceptance was a matter of imperative duty.

The Irish could not Submit.

LONDON, June 18.—Sir William Vernon Harcourt, chancellor of the exchequer, in his election address to his Derby constituents, says that the British people could not expect the Irish would quietly submit to the marquis of Salisbury's policy of "twenty years of resolute and unflinching government in Ireland."

You have often Seen Women with marked blueness or paleness of face, vitalized appetites, and a craving for unwholesome food. These are signs of a disordered liver, and the trouble must be corrected or worse results are sure to follow. Husbands and fathers cannot afford to treat this matter lightly. Dr. Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy," which dispels liver disease, costs less than sick wives and daughters. You will find it a very profitable investment.

"All But" is the title of a new novel. The hero is not, as some might infer, a William Goat.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS.

—Her summer bonnet you'd declare is Imported here direct from Paris—
But it's the one she wore last year,
Trimmed over by the little dear.
Her dress is marvelously sweet—
The way she fixed it up was neat.
Her gloves look wonderfully new—
She deftly sewed the rip or two.
Her brains with nonsense never teem:
She won't eat caramels or cream.
You've seen her?—Ah, that heartfelt sigh—
In fancy often. So have I.

We therefore wish him success in his new situation and would recommend him to the good people of Philipsburg, hoping he will be kindly received by them.

Business Prospects of Bellefonte.

We are quite willing to give our readers the benefit of what prospects are opening for business enterprises in this place, even in the face of the fact that many such bright schemes discussed in the press for several years past have not fully developed. One of the largest business transactions that ever took place here seems now about to be consummated and the visit of Mr. Robert Valentine to Philadelphia may, it is hoped, result in making the completion of it certain, but, in conversation with a member of the Valentines' iron firm Thursday morning, he informed us that the final papers have not yet been signed.

This great transaction embraces the sale of all the vast iron furnaces and ore interests of the Messrs Valentine. The purchasing party is the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company and others who are interested in a new company. Of course, the Messrs. Valentine will retain a large interest in the new firm. Included in the terms for the formation of the new company will be the investment of about $200,000 in the erection of a new coke furnace and other further developments of ore mines. The sum to be paid to those who own the property is stated to be about $400,000. The furnace in contemplation will furnish permanent employment to more than 200 men. It is probable that the new furnace will be built on the site now occupied by Valentine's charcoal furnaces a short distance south of the town.

The Bellefonte and Buffalo Run Railroad has now about five and one-half miles of track completed, and General Beaver, the president of the company, enjoyed a ride, over it on Wednesday. The Collins Bros., who are building it, will erect one or more furnaces for the purpose of working up the inexhaustible quantities of rich iron ore, which will be opened to the world by the new line. Where these furnaces will be located is just now a subject of doubt. There is said to be a hitch in the arrangements to locate the furnaces on the fair ground and a site may be selected near Milesburg. But even then we believe it will be of almost equal benefit to Bellefonte.

Every business man hopes that these arrangements will be carried out successfully.

Attempted Defense of the State College Rowdyism.

STATE COLLEGE, June 15, '86.

MR. EDITOR: Reading the article published in your paper of Monday, June 14, over the initials W. B., and knowing that it is your wish to see justice done, I write to give the public the other side of the story. That an admission fee would be charged was published on posters throughout State College, and everybody was charged admission. The students of the College, without a single exception, bought tickets. But one or two persons refused to pay and they were from Bellefonte. Rather than raise a disturbance by forcibly ejecting the said parties, the students declined dirtying their hands with such trash. In regard to the yelling, what the gentleman (?), who signs himself W. B. (which by the way are not his correct initials) said about it astonishes me. That a gentleman who had witnessed the treatment the College boys received at Bellefonte should express surprise at the students here yelling passes understanding. In Bellefonte, whenever the captain of the College team would speak to the umpire the yelling, hooting mob of negroes and low whites would rush down and surround both, and one big, burly man wished to display his chivalry by, as he expressed it, "pounding the life out of the players." The game stood one run in favor of the Bellefonte team when the Bellefonte umpire took his place. After the game was over a mob ran after the omnibus in which the College boys were seated, yelling and throwing stones at them. Such is the courteous treatment that W. B. is thinking of when he ended his article in your paper. Last year the College boys were run out of town by a crowd of Bellefonte hoodlums, and after a time the bill for their expenses which the Bellefonte Club had promised to pay, was mailed them. Before the Bellefonte Club came up one of the players was heard to boast on several occasions how he would "lay out" the gentleman who umpired the game in Bellefonte. It is hardly necessary to remark he did not do it. During the game the Bellefonte people were the first to yell and not a word of black-guardism came from a single student of the College. A crowd of Bellefonte gentry seated themselves immediately in front of ladies from the College and when they (the ladies) applauded the College boys, grossly insulted them by swearing at them and by obscene conversation. This fact was not known until late in the evening or there would probably be more cause to complain of rough treatment. That the College Club is superior to the Bellefonte Club is evident, as the Bellefonte boys had at one time a lead of 7 to 2 and the College boys wound up with a score of 18 to 11 in their favor. The Bellefonte club showed ridiculous ignorance of all rules governing the game. It must not be supposed that all I have said is to apply to the players, as they with one or two exceptions are a gentlemanly set of gentlemen. It would probably be quite a good thing for Bellefonte if this College had such courses as W. B. insinuated for there are several persons in Bellefonte eminently fitted for past graduate courses in the same, and who are fit inmates for "a lunatic asylum or a public reformatory." Why did W. B. pick on the esteemed faculty of this institution, who are as far above him mentally and morally as the sun above the earth? I write this to show the justice-loving people of Bellefonte that there are two sides to this as any other story.

Yours,
"RECTUS."

For the benefit of those who desire to be present the Pennsylvania railroad company will sell excursion tickets to Gettysburg from all stations on its lines east of Pittsburg and Erie, on June 30th, July 1st, 2d, 3d and 4th, good to return until the 8th, inclusive, at one fare for the round trip.

A Convention in Altoona.

The Miners' and Laborers' Amalgamated Association of Pennsylvania was in session last week. During the sessions of the convention on Wednesday the following telegram was received from the chairman of the Greenback party:

MILESBURG, Pa., June 16.—President Miners Convention—Greating: The perfect organization of monopoly must be met by the organization of labor; only then will justice be done to labor.

T. P. RYNDER.

In the evening a meeting was held in the opera house, Henry George, of New York, being among the speakers.

—Both parties in a controversy have a right to be heard and for that reason we publish the communication in another column. It largely consists of counter charges respecting the action of Bellefonters on former occasions, charges which we have reason to believe are not true, having been a citizen of this place for years without hearing of them before. The explanation of the 15 cents admission is a weak one. It was manifestly unfair to exact an admission fee from those who had received no notice and who went unprepared for any expense. Moreover, the phraseology "negroes and low whites" is something that belonged to the South before the war. The negroes of Bellefonte are respectable and the proportion of "low whites" is so small as not to be at all dangerous. Then again we can testify to the high character of the gentleman signing himself "B. W." We refuse to believe that any Bellefonters indulged in improper talk in the presence of ladies, because we know that the parties who went to the College would not do such a thing We believe that the "defense" only makes the matter worse, and trust that the controversy will now cease. The unfortunate affair should be covered with the veil of charity.

A Correction.

The glaring stupidity of the Watchman of last week in asserting that "Prof. Bierly is teaching music for nothing in Bellefonte" or words to that effect, —with a view of appealing to the charity of the good people of this place a week hence for a "benefit," is quite too ludicrous to be accepted as a fact by any right-minded person, when every one knows (but one editor) that the work is done under the auspices of the Y. M. C. Association of Bellefonte.

As I am not in the attitude of an object of charity before the people here it is to be hoped, Mr. Editor of the Watchman, that you will arouse yourself before you attempt any more statements of so mischievous a nature. A. B.

—The law office of the Dale Brothers was undergoing the summer cleaning process Thursday. It was a desperate undertaking and for a few moments the blinding clouds of dust arose in a manner that threatened to hide all the buildings in that neighborhood. The occupants of the office repaired to their summer resort in the Diamond Square. It is not every legal firm that can give their clients advice in such a pleasant place beneath the maple trees with the soft wind fanning them. To be sure it is quite a public place, but there is every advantage in being "open and above board" in such affairs.

To restore sense of taste, smell or hearing use Ely's Cream Balm I cures all cases of Catarrh, Hay Fever, Colds in the Head, Headache and Deafness. It is doing wonderful work. Do not fail to procure a bottle, as in it lies the relief you seek. It is easily applied with the finger. Price 50c. at druggists.

Mr. P. M. Barber, has used Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh in his family and commends it very highly. A lady is recovering the sense of smell. A Tunkhannock lawyer, known to many of our readers, says he was cured of deafness,—Pittston, Pa., Gazette.

He also says that Smith, in addition to being a nuisance, was swearing at him and causing a disturbance generally. Smith has been arrested frequently before. Mr. Folk was at first inclined to be somewhat angry at the gratuitous assault of the Democrat upon him for merely performing his duty but sensibly concluded to consider the source and let it pass.

Damaged by the Storm.

The rain in Bellefonte on Thursday at noon was heavy, but it was even heavier and the wind more violent at Boiling Spring. It blew half the roof off of E. K. Keller's barn, blew down about a dozen young apple trees and prostrated fences. People from that vicinity say it was the most violent storm that has visited that section for years.

Through our luxurious and perverted modes of living, and from a score of causes besides, diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs are now among the most common and fatal in this country. Men suffer from them most frequently and most intensely. Their victims are failing by the wayside of life every day. Do you fear this end for yourself? AN EXTRAORDINARY OFFER.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic and Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every house-owner, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its salability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $600 a month clear and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or general agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through sub-agents for ninety days and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more than double the amount we guaranteed, and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $125 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send to everyone out of employment who will send us three one cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this paper who reads this offer, to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will lose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money. RENNER MANUFACTURING CO., 126 Smithfield St., Pittsburg, Pa.

FEARFULLY COMMON.

Kidney Complaints Among Both Sexes and All Ages—A Brilliant Recovery.

There is something startling in the rapid increase of kidney diseases among the American people within a few years past. Many causes peculiar to certain classes tend to produce and aggravate these troubles—as, for example, careless living, overwork and exposure. Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., is often congratulated on the exceptional success of his medicine called "Favorite Remedy" in arresting and radically curing these most painful and dangerous disorders. Proofs of this, like the following, are constantly brought to his attention, and are published by him for the sake of thousands of other sufferers whom he desires to reach and benefit. The letter, therefore, may be of vital importance to you or to some one whom you know. It is from one of the best known and popular druggists in the fine and growing city from which he writes, where those interested may find Mr Crawford at his place of business on the corner of Main and Union streets:

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 22, 1884.

Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: For ten years I had been afflicted with kidney disease in its most acute form. What I suffered must be left to the imagination, for no one can appreciate it only those who have gone through it. I resorted to many physicians and to many different kinds of treatment, and spent a great deal of money, only to find myself older and worse than ever. I may say that I used twenty-five bottles of a preparation widely advertised as a specific for this precise sort of troubles, and found it entirely useless—at least in my case. Your "FAVORITE REMEDY"—I say it with a perfect recollection of all that was done for me besides—is the only thing that did me the slightest good, and I am happy to admit it gave me permanent relief. I have recommended "FAVORITE REMEDY" to many people for kidney disease, and they all agree with me in saying that DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY has not its equal in the wide world for this distressing and often fatal complaint. Use this letter as you deem best for the benefit of others. Yours, &c.,

Political Observations.

The contest for the Democratic nomination for prothonotary waxes quite warm and exciting, even in this early day. In reviewing the field with an eagle eye, it looks as if Mr. Cal. Harper is working the hardest of any and leaving no stone unturned to reach the coveted prize, the sweets of which he has already had a good taste. There is no one in this part of the woods who knows better how to work effectually than Cal. He has qualities about him wonderfully popular, but as with all persons when not in the noon-tide of power, his friends are perhaps not so numerous now as they used to be. Just one move, however, on the checker board of Centre county politics will bring all of them back again.

The next most devoted worker is Lew Schaefer. Perhaps he most deserves the office. He is a model young man, for a Democrat. But, perhaps, his forte is not politics. He don't seem to be "a man of fate" in the same way that Cleveland is said to be. The prevailing idea seems to be. "He should be nominated, but I don't believe he will be." But wait; Lew has aunts, uncles and cousins whose name is legion. See what they will do.

Quite the opposite is Mr. Mingle, whom the Governor so quickly made "the present incumbent" of the office. He wants the nomination, but in his heart of hearts he don't expect to get it. He is n't making very decided moves to resign from his present "soft" position to take upon him the duties of office, as he is cautious and will wait to see how the nomination goes. But he is a child of fortune, and, ten chances to one, will be the one to whom the Good Book refers when it says,—to him who hath more shall be given. We don't believe he is very deserving. But he is a fair man for a Democrat, has business capacity and is capable of receiving anything less than a Presidential nomination.

Then there is Aaron Williams, a man who isn't working very hard for the nomination, but who has a record as Prothonotary, and would like to add three more years to that record. Aaron has as many good qualities as any one of the candidates.

Didn't Mean any Harm.

WATCHMAN OFFICE, June 18, '86.

Editor Daily News:

Mr. Bierley, over the signature of "A. B.," rushed very indignantly into print, in the DAILY NEWS, yesterday. Mr. Bierley is the vocal music teacher at the Y. M. C. A. Hall here. He is a nice man, with a white hat.

Mr. Bierley was quite cross because the Watchman, in a hurriedly written item, stated that he was teaching music "for nothing," and would take a "benefit" on next Thursday evening at Humes' Hall.

Everybody, except Mr. Bierley, understood that what was meant was that the instructions imparted cost the classes nothing, and that the "benefit" was really for the Y. M. C. A., who have Mr. Bierley employed at so much per week. His name was merely used for short, as it were, and as representing the whole business.

Not for the world would we hold up the eminent Mr. Bierley as an object of charity. He has been earning his weekly stipend here like a little man.

Mr. Bierley like a "benefit?" Not he. That would be beneath his dignity. And yet really eminent men have taken benefits. Very respectfully,

JOE W. FUREY.

Races in Philipsburg.

On the 2d and 3d of July the 10th annual meeting of the Philipsburg Driving Association will be held, to attend which we acknowledge an invitation. W. E. Landon is president of the association and Jno. A. Wolfe secretary. The programme is as follows:

FIRST DAY.

No. 1. Trotting—Open to all horses owned in Clearfield county, bar R. N. Shaw's G. G. Dunkle. Purse $50.

No. 2. Trotting—3 m. class. Purse, $100.

No. 3. Trotting—2.40 class. Purse $1.50.

SECOND DAY.

No. 4. Trotting—Open to all horses owned in Centre county, used for road purposes and driven by non professionals. Purse $50.

No. 5. Trotting—2.50 class. Purse $100.

No. 6. Free for all pacers or trotters. Purse, $200.

The Philipsburg Driving Park is one of the finest in the centre of the State. The track is full half mile and is in excellent condition. The stables are large and commodious and well appointed. The grand stand will hold 800 persons, and there is a large, excellent, covered dancing platform close to the track.

—An old lady named Mary Powers, who had been living alone in Lancaster, and who had not been seen about her house for a day or so, was found lying at the foot of her cellar stairs, on Thursday evening, with her skull crushed in and life extinct. Appearances indicated that she had fallen down the stairs while engaged in preparing supper on Wednesday evening.

—If the large iron furnaces, talked of, are constructed, Mr. John Bartruff promises to erect a large and handsome livery stable. This should be sufficient inducement to start the erection of the furnaces at once.

Notes about Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Russell, of the Second Presbyterian church, Altoona, occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church here on Sunday, delivering two excellent sermons. He is a gentleman of pleasing appearance, with a full, rich voice and good delivery. He is quick and energetic in action, but sedate and dignified in the pulpit. He chose for the text of his morning sermon the 'ast clause of St. Mark 7:24—"But He could not be hid." With this as a germinal note he enlarged upon the various triumphs won by Christ in His conflicts with opposing powers, beginning with the escape from the sword of Herod, rising triumphant from the rivers of blood which flowed from the veins of Christian martyrs, successfully winning battles against the opposition of infidelity. Infidels of the Robert Ingersoll school he characterized as the greatest plagiarists of the age. Their arguments can be found in ancient Grecian and Roman literature. Christ is now battling with the worldliness and fashion of the present time and in triumphing over that will win a greater battle than any of former ages.

In the Lutheran church, Sunday morning, Rev. Chas. Steck delivered a sermon which contained some of the most beautiful word-pictures that ever ornamented any discourse. His text was chosen from II Corinthians 4:13, latter clause, "We also believe, and therefore speak"

The Episcopalian church surely possesses the finest choir in Bellefonte and they rendered the choral service Sunday evening in admirable style. The solo parts of the Benedictus were given by Mrs. Geo. Bible, Miss Julia Valentine and Dr. Geo. Harris. The 10th selection of Psalms, the responses and all the "Amens" were rendered by the choir.

The dedication of the Lutheran church at Centre Hall occurred on Sunday, all the services being conducted impressively.

Sunday evening was also the occasion for the memorial services at Milesburg, in honor of three members of Geo. L. Potter Post who died during the year. Our eloquent fellow-citizen, J. G. Love, Esq., delivered the memorial oration.

A Spoon Story from Indiana County

The Cherrytree Record says that Mrs. John Somerville, of that place, exhibited to the wonde ing gaze of its editor, the other evening, a set of pure silver tea spoons, which have been in almost constant use for over two hundred years. It was the custom many years ago for each bride to be presented with a set of silver teaspoons when married, and these spoons were presented to Mary Holliday—in honor of whose husband Hollidaysburg was named—and her initials, "M. H.," are still plainly discernable on the spoons. Mrs. Holliday was the great grandmother of Mrs. Somerville's late husband, and the spoons are known to be not less than two hundred years old. Mrs. Somerville still has the full set of six spoons, but they are worn somewhat smaller than they were originally.

—We suppose it is not often that ex-Gov. A. G. Curtin cares to forego the pleasures of a good dinner. But that's what he did forgo the other day when he was compelled to send regrets to Col. Duffy of Lancaster county, who had bidden the ex-Governor to a dinner of the Farmers' Club of Pennsylvania. Such a dinner as that was to forego! And a very distinguished company of statesmen and journalists it was that assembled to do honor to the occasion. But we can well believe that Governor Curtin missed this event only because an important duty demanded his presence in Washington at that time, viz., to cast his vote against Morrison's infamous tariff bill. This is at least one action for which our representative deserves praise.

—And now we learn that there is an editor living who is ninety-one years old. How we should love to see him. A man who has lived that long and has "hustled for 'ads'," dodged duns, fought with kicking printers, smoked the average cigars that are left on the editor's desk, eaten leaden wedding cake, poured out taffy by the barrel and been knocked around, half starved, and cursed by everybody in general, and lived through it all is a greater curiosity than ever Barnum got hold of in his palmiest days.

—In the collision at Howard on Friday morning the Bald Eagle express came in contact with a car on the main track. The car which had been standing on the siding and was being moved refused to answer to the brake and was out on the track before a signal could be given the express of the danger. The engine, No. 64, was badly wrecked and the car was knocked into several small pieces.

—Around on Bishop street a new pavement has been constructed from Cherry alley east to the end of Ammerman's new building. A piazza is also being erected in front of the store building. The stone pavements on the same street are being relaid and made as good as new. Bishop street is progressing.

—There was a wreck on the Bald Eagle railroad at Howard on Friday morning, delaying the 10.35 a. m. express west an hour. No one was hurt except one man who had one of his limbs skinned by jumping from the car.

The Tornado at Boiling Spring.

About as near an actual tornado as often visits this portion of the country swept down upon Boiling Spring Thursday last, and was referred to in the DAILY NEWS of Friday. People who observed it closely assert that the formation and movements of the clouds were peculiar. At noon a small cloud scudded across the sky from over the hill northeast of Mr. Teller's house. Before advancing very far it came in contact with another cloud and the two descended on the hillside, prostrating seven apple trees. Then descending nearer the water the tornado struck a cluster of willow trees, twisting them in fantastic shape. While in the grasp of the wind the trees seemed to be revolving rapidly, and when released some of the branches which had been torn off were carried away, while others dropped to the ground. The fact of the storm tearing off part of the roof of Mr. Keller's barn has been already related and it is believed that had not the willow trees diverted the course of the wind the barn would have disappeared. The last object touched by the tornado was Eckenrode's barn. Both of the doors were driven in, but the building was not otherwise damaged. About thirty or forty yards of fence were destroyed, stout posts being pulled out of the ground.

The latest reported freak of the Boiling Spring tornado on Thursday is simply astounding. The horns were blown from 'Squire Johnston's Ayrshire bull, one of which was discovered by a man repairing the lightning rod on the Williamsport court house. The horn was imbedded, point foremost, ten inches in the right shoulder of the copper plate Goddess of Liberty. The other was found in proper position, firmly fastened as if it had grown there, on the head of a large hog at Blairsville Intersection, Indiana county. The hog seems proud of the horn and stubbornly refuses to have it extricated. The two horns are identified as the property of 'Squire Johnston's bull by the initials of the 'Squire's name burned on them. What next?

A Runaway Car.

On Friday morning some wood cutters at Howard attempted to run a car loaded with paper mill wood to a siding. The grade being steep the car became unmanagable and the break would not operate to stop the car, which gained great momentum as it continued on. It dashed into the town of Howard at the speed of 30 miles an hour, constantly increasing. Men who knew that the express train was due endeavored to stop the car or throw it from the track by placing a plank in front of it. But this barrier failed of its purpose and the car passed through the town and on into the country again. A man who was in the car jumped from it, and escaped with only a few scratches. About one-half mile beyond Howard the car came in contact with the engine of the express train. As the train was just coming around a curve the car was scarcely seen before it struck. The engine was damaged and the car with its load of paper wood was knocked into fragments. The pieces of paper wood seemed almost as fine as flour. Passengers on the train—among whom was Judge Orvis—were greatly shaken up.

—In Artist R. A. Beck's barber shop there has been placed an elaborate and elegant chair for the occupancy of the individual who is disposed to submit his hirsute appendage to the mercy of Mr. B. and his razor. The chair is named the "Climax," and in its construction the triumph of mechanical art has been attained. The person who reclines at full length in it can, if he desires, contemplate visions of elysian bliss and be floated around in the air as smoothly and gracefully as a swallow on the wing. The chair can be made to assume twelve separate and distinct positions, varying in degrees of comfort—the most comfortable being reserved for the reporter of the REPUBLICAN and the most uncomfortable for such persons as John C. Miller, Isaac Mitchell, John P. Harris and Drs. George Harris and A. Hibler. It is not until the occupant alights that the perfection of its arrangement is realized. The chair heaves slowly up, the upholstered roller which has served as a foot rest begins to revolve, the occupant imagines he is coasting down hill at 45° when he suddenly finds himself standing upright on the barber shop floor. In addition to this chair, Mr. Beck is painting the steam pipes in his shop with ethereal blue paint and making other similar improvements.

—Miss Nettie McFarlane, of Boalsburg, has been devoting her attention to the cultivation of strawberries this year. She has succeded in cultivating some of the finest berries in the county. Saturday morning her brother, Mr. Kyle McFarlane, received from her 135 quarts of the berries, which she not only cultivated but also picked. This is a very beautiful and practical way for a young lady to devote her time and we are sure Miss Nettie deserves the admiration of everybody.

—Andrew Carnegie, of Pittsburg, has purchased 200 acres of ground directly opposite the Cresson hotel, and on the summit of this land it is proposed to erect cottages for the use of the different members of the firm of Carnegie, Phipps & Co.

Locked Out.

The Misses Morrison, accompanied by their guests, the Misses Mott, of Philipsburg, went out calling, Monday evening, leaving the parental mansion alone. When they had emerged from the house the latch key lock fastened itself behind them, although they did not notice that fact. It was late when they returned and they discovered, to their discomfiture, that they could not gain an entrance. What was done? what to do? Well, a glance told them the former, but not the latter. But they took it with good grace and trusted in that good fortune which always favors the fair to extricate them from their difficulty. At length he came along—on the other side of the street. As one of the young ladies—presumably one of the Misses Morrison—watched the figure moving along she remarked, "I wonder if that isn't Charley Tripple." "Of course it is," answered the figure and in a moment he had joined them ready to be of service.

In the meantime, the ladies had borrowed a key from Miss McCalmont, who lives next door, but that would not work.

A brilliant idea, which had its origin in the mind of one of the young ladies was for Charley to climb up and enter one of the rear windows and thence descend to open the street door. By the time he had gained half the way up the dizzy height, of couse another and more brilliant idea was produced, and Charley came down to listen to it. This time they proposed that he enter McCalmont's window and then find his way around to the aforesaid door. He did this with little or no adventure and perhaps in less than half an hour the door was opened and an entrance safely effected for the young ladies, who did not mind the temporary lock-out at all, but rather enjoyed it. We doubt not that they will have that troublesome lock fixed in a way that will not again lock out the rightful occupants of the house.

He Goes for "Gushing Tom."

HOWARD, PA., June 19, 1886.

MR. EDITOR—Dear Sir: I have been attacked on all sides again in the Watchman, but happily am not hurt yet. As to sore heads among Republicans, that is simply out of the question; they are on the Mugwump side. Therefore, they howl. Give a dog a kick and he will howl every time. (I hope the dog will excuse me for using this illustration, as we do not wish to bring the dog level down to that of "Gushing Tom's,") but simply to present the proper idea to the public. The old saying is that "a loafer is the devil's servant," and as this embraces all of "Gushing Tom's" qualities, we do not wonder that he does disgrace the human family, and of course no one is amiable, congenial and prominent except those with whom he associates! As for his froth in the Watchman, we do not care, as blasphemy seems to be the same to him as prayer to the Christian. It is only an expression of the inner man. Yet we feel ashamed to have a paper in our family which contains his lies and blasphemy, and we advise "Boaster" to shut right off on him.

It seems to be the old story over again with "Gushing Tom," to try hard to rise and, when failing in this, try to tear everything down to his level. But Republicanism will not lower, as onward and upwards is ever its motto, and Mugwumpism is simply nothing. Even Democrats are disgusted with this slangy and indecent language.

We feel that we have done our duty to the readers of the Watchman in having given them a life-size pen-picture of "Gushing Tom," and wish them all a long and happy life. — —

—The funeral services in the Methodist church on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock over the remains of the late Mrs. Jacob T. Stevens were largely attended and impressive. Rev. Dr. Monroe officiated and delivered a funeral sermon of much force and power, making even the most careless reflect upon the uncertainty of life and the eternity to which death is but the entrance. The deceased had a large circle of friends who express much sympathy with the bereaved ones who survive.

—Henry C. Trout, who has been employed as ashpit man on the Pennsylvania railroad near Leaman Place, Lancaster county, for some time, was killed near that station on Wednesday night, and his body was found on the next morning with the skull crushed. It is not known how the accident occured. Trout was 42 years old and unmarried, but supported his mother. The body was sent to his home near Bellmont.

—On Friday afternoon a 13-year old daughter of Mrs. Bartlett, living on Jail hill, was severely scalded about the legs and feet. She, with two younger children, was alone in the house when she accidentally upset a kettle of hot water over the lower part of her person. Most of the water was precipitated upon her feet. She has suffered great pain, but is now feeling much more comfortable.

—Louis Shafer and Ed. Wolf escaped from the Bedford jail on Wednesday night by digging a hole through the wall of the jail yard. Shafer was in on a sentence for shooting at some parties in Harrison township. Wolf was in jail awaiting trial for stealing three dollars out of Mr. Lowry's pocket at Hyndman. It is said he is also wanted in Maryland for various offences.
